RAPHAEL or RAFFAELLO, born at Urbino, April 6, 1483, died in Rome, April 6, 1520. Umbrian and Roman school; family name Sante, Santi, Sanctius, or Sanzio; son and pupil of Giovanni Santi, after whose death (1492) he was probably taught by Timoteo Vite or Luca Signorelli, until his uncle, Simon Ciarla, took him to Perugia, at some time between June, 1499, and May,

RAPHAEL

1500, and apprenticed him to Perugino, by whom he was employed with other assistants in painting the frescos of the Sala del Cambio, then in progress. The master returned to Florence (1502), and Raphael followed him two years later, after having painted a Crucifixion (1500), Earl Dudley, London; a Coronation of the Virgin (1503), Vatican Gallery, Rome; and assisted Pinturicchio at Siena in decorating the so-called Library of the Cathedral with frescos. After remaining at Florence for perhaps a year, during which he painted the Marriage of the Virgin, Brera, Milan, for S. Francesco, Città di Castello, Raphael returned to Perugia (1505) to commence a fresco of the Trinity, at S. Severo, which was finished by Perugino (1521). In 1505 he was commissioned to paint a Coronation of the Virgin, for the Convent of Monteluce, at Perugia. He commenced it many years later at Rome, and it was finished five years after his death, by Giulio Romano and Il Fattore. Returning to Florence in 1506, at the time when Leonardo da Vinci and Michelangelo were engaged upon their celebrated cartoons for the great Hall of the Palazzo Vecchio, Raphael studied both, but especially those of Leonardo, who, together with Fra Bartolommeo, exercised great influence over him during his two years' residence in that city, which, with the exception of a short visit to Urbino and Bologna, lasted until the summer of 1508. In the pictures painted by Raphael at Florence, a growing individuality is distinctly visible. Umbrian in spirit, they show a tenderness of feeling, an element of ideality, a love of nature, unknown to the art of Perugino. Called to Rome in 1508 by Pope Julius II., whose favour he secured through the good offices of his compatriot and relative, the architect Bramante, Raphael began his great series of frescos in the Stanze of the Vatican by painting the Dispute of the Sacrament (1508–11),—the last work in his second or Florentine style. He had, however, already given token, in the Entombment (1507), Borghese Gallery, Rome, of the dramatic and constructive elements of his genius, which were to find opportunity for a full display in those master works of his third or Roman manner,—the Heliodorus (1512) and the School of Athens (1511). During the twelve years of his life at Rome, in the service of Julius II. and Leo X., Raphael accomplished a prodigious amount of work as painter, architect, sculptor, and archaeologist. His wonderful genius, his personal charm, his engaging manner, and his obliging disposition, won him troops of admirers, friends, and scholars, whose flattering praises served but to stimulate him to renewed effort. Eager only to perfect his work, and incapable of jealousy, he studied the grandiose style of Michelangelo and the rich colour of Sebastiano del Piombo that he might improve his own style and colour, and to the day of his death achieved ever-increasing excellence. Leo X. made him inspector of all marbles dug up at Rome, commissioned him to make plans and elevations of her ancient edifices, and on the 1st of August, 1514, appointed him to succeed Bramante as head architect at St. Peter's. Some idea of his work under both Popes can be formed from the following general sketch: Between his arrival in Rome in 1508 and the death of Julius II. in 1513, he painted in the Vatican the frescos of the Camera della Segnatura, the Heliodorus, and a part of the Miracle of Bolsena in the Stanza d'Eliodoro, the Isaiah (1512), S. Agostino, the Madonna di Foligno (1511), with other pictures and portraits, such as those of Julius II., Palazzo Pitti, the Fornarina (1509), Palazzo Barberini, etc. Under Leo X. Raphael painted in the Vatican the Attila, the Liberation of St. Peter, with the ceiling decorations in the same chamber; and among easel pictures produced the Madonna del Pesco (1514), Madrid

Gallery, the Madonna della Sedia (1516-17), Palazzo Pitti, Florence, with many other pictures mentioned in the accompanying list of his works; designed the Cartoons (1515-16), S. Kensington Museum, London; painted a great number of portraits, decorated the Loggie of the Vatican with 48 frescos (1516-19), grotesques, and arabesques, carried out by his pupils; executed for Agostino Chigi the frescos of Galatea (1514), and History of Psyche, at the Farnesina (1517), with the assistance of Giulio Romano and Il Fattore; designed the mosaics and the statue of Jonah for the Chigi Chapel at S. M. del Popolo, the frescos of the History of Venus and Cupid (1519), and painted the Holy Family of Francis I. (1518), Louvre, Paris, the Madonna di San Sisto (1519), Dresden Gallery, and last of all the Transfiguration (1519-20), Vatican Gallery, upon which he was at work at the time of his death. If in the work of Raphael's Roman period, here enumerated but in part, that indescribable, spring-like freshness is wanting which marks those of his Florentine period, its absence is compensated by an unrivalled skill in composition, an added power of expression, an increased grandeur of style, an improvement in the use of colour, a mastery of portraiture, and a perception of ideal beauty which culminates in the Madonna di San Sisto. Nor must we, in speaking of this great painter's life-work, forget to mention the immense number of exquisite studies and designs in pen and ink, silverpoint, pencil, and chalk, which constitute by no means the least precious part of the world's inheritance from the Prince of Painters. Works in fresco: The Trinity (1505), S. Severo, Perugia; Disputc of Sacrament, School of Athens, Parnassus, Prudence, Fortitude and Temperance, Justinian, Gregory IX., Adam and Eve, Apollo and Marsyas, Judgment of Solomon, Astronomy, Theology, Philosophy, Poetry, and Jurisprudence (1508-11), Justice, Camera della Segnatura, Vatican; God appearing to Noah, Jacob's Dream, Heliodorus, Mass of Bolsena, RAPHAEL'S CARTOONS, Raphael and his assistants, S. Kensington Museum, London. A series of designs, drawn with chalk on paper and coloured in distemper (1515-16), to be worked in tapestry for the decoration of the Sistine Chapel, Rome; tapestries made at Arras, in Flanders, under direction of Bernhard van Orley and sent to Rome in 1518. The tapestries were carried off at the sack of Rome by the Constable de Bourbon in 1527; restored by Constable Anne de Montmorency to Julius III. in 1553; again carried off by the French in 1798 and sold in Genoa to a Jew, who is said to have burned one to get the gold it contained, and sold the others in 1808 to Pius VII. They are now in the Hall of the Arazzi in the Vatican; much faded. The cartoons remained at Arras nearly a century, when Charles I. purchased them, by advice of Rubens, for use of his tapestry weavers at Mortlake. Only seven of the original eleven remained, and these had been cut into strips about two feet wide. On the death of Charles I., Cromwell bought them for the nation for £300. They remained neglected in a lumber room at Whitehall until the reign of William III., who had them repaired and hung in a gallery erected for them at Hampton Court by Sir Christopher Wren. They are now exhibited under glass at South Kensington Museum. Cartoons: 1. Miraculous Draught of Fishes, H. 10 ft. 6 in. × 13 ft. 6 in.; 2. Paul preaching at Athens, H. 11 ft. 4 in. × 14 ft. 7 in.; 3. Elymas the Sorcerer struck with Blindness, H. 11 ft. 4 in. × 14 ft. 7 in.; 4. Christ's Charge to Peter, H. 11 ft. 4 in. × 17 ft. 6 in. The remaining three subjects in tapestry, of which the designs are lost, are: Stoning of St. Stephen, Conversion of St. Paul, and St. Paul in Prison at Philippi. The 11th, of which all trace is lost, was the Coronation of the Virgin, for the altarpiece.—Passavant, ii. 189, 225; Clément (Corkran), 278, 371; Blackburn, Pictures at S. REMBRANDT VAN RYN, born in Leyden, July 15, 1607, died in Amsterdam, buried Oct. 8, 1669. Dutch school; his father, Harmen Gerritsz, a miller, and his mother, Neeltgen Willems van Suydtbroek, daughter of a baker, lived in a house situated in the Weddersteeg (Street of the Tank), near the Witte Poort (White Gate) and there Rembrandt was born. Having little taste for books, and a strong natural love of art, he was early apprenticed for three years to Iakob Isaacz van Swanenburch, a second-rate painter, who had settled at Leyden in 1617 after his return from Italy. Then followed six months' study with Pieter Lastman, and a return to Leyden about 1624. Rembrandt's earliest signed works date from 1627. Three years later (1630) he removed from Leyden to Amsterdam, where he spent the remainder of his life. He never left Holland, and in it visited only Dordrecht, Friesland, Gueldres, and perhaps Clèves. With his first wife, Saskia van Ulenburgh, whom he married in 1634, and who died in 1642, he lived very happily, and the portraits of her at Cassel (1633), Dresden (1633, 1641?), and Berlin (1643), are among his finest works. They lived in a house at Amsterdam, in the Breedstraat, where he collected many fine Italian and Dutch pictures, glass, armour, porcelain, etc. Here he painted, etched, and directed the studies of numerous pupils. For fourteen years after Saskia's death Rembrandt and his son, Titus, lived in this house, at the end of which time, as his affairs were hopelessly involved, it was sold by auction with its contents. For the remainder of his days the great artist lived in comparative poverty. As etcher and painter, he holds a unique place in the history of art. No one has rivalled him in the management of light and shade; few in colour, in character, in the expression of homely but deep sentiment. Absolutely original, he taught many able scholars, whose best efforts only show how unapproachable he is. Works: Old Man with Gorget and Turban (1630 or 1631), Portrait of Coppenol (1631), Youth (1634), Portrait of a Turk (1636?), Sobrisky Portrait (1636?), Elderly Lady (1637 or 1638), Rembrandt's Mother (1640), Rabbi Manasseh Ben Israel (1645),

French school; illuminator, painter, poet, and patron of arts; second son of Louis II., Duke of Anjou, Comte de Provence and titular King of Naples. Summonzio, the Neapolitan writer, says that King René was a good painter in the Flemish style, but several pictures attributed to him are now shown to be by another hand; as, for example, the famous Triptych with the Burning Bush, etc., in the Cathedral at Aix, a work of Nicolas Froment of Avignon (1475), who was in King René's employ; and another Triptych by the same hand in the Uffizi. The illuminated MS. of "La tres douce mercy" (1497), at Vienna, is admitted to be the King's handiwork. Many pictures attributed to him in churches at Aix, Angers, Lyons, Avignon, and Marseilles, were destroyed during the revolution. Works attributed to King René: Diptych, Vision of S. In 1768, on the establishment of the Royal Academy, he was chosen its first president, and was knighted by George III. ; and in 1769, Jan. 2, he delivered his first discourse to the students of the Academy. On the death of Allan Ramsay (1784), he became principal painter in ordinary to the king. He exhibited 245 works at the Royal Academy, his contributions averaging eleven annually. He died unmarried, and was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral, near Sir Christopher Wren. Reynolds painted many historical and fancy subjects, but it is as a portrait painter that he excelled all his contemporaries. Ruskin calls him the "prince of portrait painters" and "one of the seven colourists of the world," placing him with Titian, Giorgione, Correggio, Tintoretto, Veronese, and Turner. But though his pictures still have a peculiar grace and elegance from the artistic pose of the figures and the happy arrangement of accessories, many of them have lost their freshness in consequence of his use of fading colours and his experiments with fugitive mediums. Among the best preserved of his works are those in the National Gallery. A collection of Reynolds's works was exhibited in the winter of 1883-84 at the Grosvenor Gallery, London, including the following : Portrait of Sir Joshua (1748), Mrs. Gwatkin ; Mrs. Field (1748), E. R. Venetian school; nephew, pupil, and associate of Sebastiano Ricci, whom he accompanied in 1710 to France and England, where he painted landscapes and architecture pieces, to be found in many collections. RICCIARELLI

F. Cervelli, whom he accompanied to Milan; resided several years in Florence, Rome, and other Italian cities, studying and executing many works. From Vienna, where he decorated the Palace of Schönbrunn, he went to England, in the reign of Queen Anne, and during a ten years' residence painted the chapel at Bulstrode for the Duke of Portland, the hall of Burlington House, an altarpiece for the chapel of Chelsea College, and other works, some of which are at Hampton Court. In 1718 he returned to Venice, where he lived rich and honoured until his death. With a fertile invention and great facility of execution, Sebastiano excelled in imitating the great masters of the Venetian school, especially Paolo Veronese. There is much grandeur and force in his compositions, but they generally want finish; perhaps because he had more orders than he had time to fill. Among his works in Venice are: Christ appearing to the Holy Women, Academy; Resurrection, S. Geminiano; Communion of the Apostles, and St. Dominick, Corpus Domini; Massacre of the Innocents, Scuola della Carità; Baptism of Christ, and Apostles' Supper, Capucines; Madonna with Saints, S. ROMAN CHARITY (Caritas Romana), the title generally given to illustrations of an act of filial piety narrated by several ancient writers, in which a daughter nourishes with her own milk a parent condemned to death by hunger. According to Valerius Maximus (v. 8) and Pliny (Nat. Hist., vii. 36) the imprisoned parent is a mother; but Festus and Solinus make the characters of the drama a father named Cimon and his daughter Pera. The latter is the version adopted by the painters. There is an antique painting of the subject in the Studj Museum, Naples. In the Church of S. Niccolò in Carcere, Rome, supposed to stand on the site of the Temple of Piety, said by Pliny to have been erected over the dungeon, is shown a series of cells, one of which is reputed to be the scene of the Caritas Romana. This place inspired the beautiful lines in "Childe Harold" (iv. 148-151).

By Gerard Honthorst, Old Pinakothek, Munich; canvas, H. 3 ft. 9 in. × 4 ft. 8 in. Figures seen to the knees. The daughter, holding a lighted candle in one hand and looking anxiously towards the right, presents her breast to her aged father, who, half-nude, has chains on his wrists. One of Honthorst's best pictures. Lithographed by Ferdinand Piloty, the elder. Etched by Joseph Hauber. Engraved by Johann Karl Schleich.

By Jules Joseph Lefebvre, Melun Museum. The daughter, holding her infant in her arms and looking around anxiously lest somebody may observe her, presents her breast to her father through the barred window of his cell, outside of which she is standing. Painted in Rome, whence sent to the École des Beaux Arts in 1863; Salon, 1864; purchased by the State.

ROMANELLI, GIOVANNI FRANCESCO, born at Viterbo in 1610 or 1612, died there, July, 1662. Roman school; pupil at Rome of Domenichino and of Pietro da Cortona; won the favour of the Barberini family and executed frescos in the Vatican to the satisfaction of Urban VIII. Painted also

Presentation of the Virgin, for a mosaic in St. Peter's, a very successful work. Became Prince of Academy of St. Luke. Followed Cardinal Barberini to Paris in 1648 and painted frescos in the Maza-

rin Palace. Romanelli returned to Italy in 1651, but was recalled to Paris by Mazarin in 1659 and received with great favour by Louis XIV., who intrusted to him the decoration of several apartments in the Louvre. This work was finished in 1661, when ill-health compelled his return to Italy. He had just built a house near Viterbo, where he intended to retire and enjoy his wealth and honours, when he died. He was a weak, though pleasing, painter. His son Urbano, also a painter, died young in 1682. Most of Romanelli's easel pictures are in churches in Rome, and in Viterbo; among those in public galleries are: Venus and Æneas, Venus and Adonis (2), Gathering of Manna, Louvre, Paris; Allegory on Riches, Darmstadt Museum; Martyrdom of St. Lawrence, Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Herodias with the Head of St. John, Schleissheim Gallery; Victory Dance of Jewesses before David, The Kings of India doing Homage to Alexander, Vienna Museum.—Ch. ROMANINO, GIROLAMO, born at Brescia about 1485, died there in 1566. Venetian school; supposed pupil of Stefano Rizzi, or of Floriano Ferramola at Brescia, but probably studied also under one of the Friulian masters. Free of guild at Brescia before 1510, when he was a skilled artist in the manner of the Palmas and of Pellegrino. At this time he painted the Pietà, now in the collection of Sir Ivor Guest, England, which was quickly followed by the Madonna with Saints, and the Judith, in the Berlin

Museum, and the Madonna with Child (1502-12), S. Francesco, Brescia. After the sack of Brescia, Romanino lived a home among the Benedictines of S. Clotina, Padua, for whose church he painted (1513) a splendid altarpiece, Madonna with Saints, now in the Padua Gallery. His Last Supper, painted for the refectory and now in the main gallery, shows less ease and skill. He returned to Brescia in 1516-17, and in 1520 contracted with Moravia to paint the Crucifixion of Christ in S. Giovanni Evangelista, where his frescoes and canvases are still extant though much injured; worked in Bergamo about and after 1517, and in Trent about 1540. Among his best works is the Crucifixion (1525), National Gallery, London; other noteworthy works are: Pietà, Madonna, Crucifixion and Saints, Berlin Museum; Christ carrying his Cross, Tosi Collection, Bergamo; Assumption, S. Alessandro, Bergamo; Christ's Sermon on the Mount, S. Maria, Bergamo; four large frescoes (1519-20) in S. Giovanni, Cremona; two do., Brescia; Marriage of Virgin, S. ROMNEY, GEORGE, born at Dalton-le-Furness, Lancashire, England, Dec. 15, 1734, died at Kendal, Nov. 15, 1802. After acquiring a little knowledge of painting from Steele, a painter at Kendal, he supported himself by painting portraits in the north of England, at two guineas a head, until 1762, when he went to London. In that year, and in 1765, he gained premiums from the Society of Arts for his pictures of the Death of Wolfe and the Death of King Edward. In 1773 he visited Italy with Ozias Humphrey, and, after a two years' absence, established himself in London, where, until 1797, when he removed to Hampstead, he divided public patronage with Reynolds and Gainsborough. His favourite model was the notorious and beautiful Lady Hamilton, whose face he reproduced under many disguises. He painted with few colours, with great breadth of treatment, and in some instances with exceeding grace and sentiment. Much of his work is sketchy, often careless in the accessories, but it is never without charm. His flesh tints are fresh, and his treatment of hair, though slight, is truthful and facile. Works: Lady Hamilton as a Bacchante, Parson's Daughter, National Gallery, London; Portraits of Richard Cumberland, Lady Hamilton, and Flaxman, National Portrait Gallery, ib.; Lord Stanley and Sister, Lady Horton, Earl of Derby; Lady Hamilton at Spinning Wheel, Earl of Normanton; do. as Ariadne, Baron L. de Rothschild; do. as Euphrosyne, Jeffrey Whitehead, Esq. Painted for Church of the Camaldoli, Rome; carried to Paris in 1799; restored in 1815, and placed in the Vatican. called also Delle Pomarance, under whom he became a good historical painter. Employed in the decoration of the Vatican. Painted Death of Ananias and Sapphira, which was copied in mosaic for St. Peter's. Painted also the Baptism of Constantine, in S. Giovanni di Laterano ; but his most noted works are the frescos with which he decorated the cupola of La Santa Casa di Loreto. The walls of S. Stefano, Rome, are covered with frescos by him, representing the martyrdoms of saints from the Crucifixion to the reign of Julian. In the Old Pinakothek, Munich, is a Martyrdom of Simon of Cana, and in the Schleissheim Gallery a Joseph interpreting the Dreams.—Lanzi, i. 467 ; Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne.

His Madonna, in the Palazzo Doria, Rome, and another, in the Forli Museum, are examples of his earlier style ; and his Madonna and Saints, in the Ravenna Gallery, of his later style.—C. & C., N. ROSA, SALVATOR, born at Renella, near Naples, June 20, 1615, died in Rome, March 15, 1673. Neapolitan school; pupil of his uncle, Paolo Greco, and his brother-in-law, Francesco Fracanzano. When about eighteen years old he made a sketching tour through the Abruzzi, and is said to have learned from banditti of that wild region many incidents which he afterwards painted. On his return home he was obliged, by the death of his father, to labour for the support of the family; but he was fortunate enough to gain the friendship of Lanfranco and Aniello Falcone, through whose aid his pictures found a sale. Under Falcone's instruction he learned to paint battle scenes with such success as to rival his master. About 1635 he went to Rome, was patronized by Cardinal Brancaccia, and painted for him several works at Viterbo. After a visit to Naples he went to Rome again, in 1639, and soon became famous as a painter, a musician, and a satirical poet. In 1647, on hearing of the insurrection of Masaniello, he hastened to Naples and joined the Compagnia della Morte, of which Falcone was the leader. On the downfall of Masaniello he returned to Rome, where he got into trouble by a satirical picture, and therefore accepted the invitation of the Grand Duke to visit Florence. In 1652 he returned to Rome, and spent the rest of his days there. Salvator Rosa was ambitious to excel as an historical painter, and his masterpiece is considered to be the Conspiracy of Catiline, in the Pitti, Florence; but he was more successful in landscapes and marine views. He is at his best when he depicts a den of robbers amid the wildest surroundings—naked crags, gloomy pools, foaming torrents, trees scathed by lightning or the tempest. He excelled also in battle scenes, his figures being full of movement and expression. Among his works are: His portrait (2), and Landscapes with Figures (2), Uffizi, Florence; Two Marine Pieces, Selva de' Filosofi, Conspiracy of Catiline, Temptation of St. Anthony, Portrait of himself, nine others, Palazzo Pitti, ib.; Souls in Purgatory, St. Paul in the Desert, Brera, Milan; Scene from "Jerusalem Delivered," Grotto with Satyrs, Two Landscapes, Galleria Estense, Modena; Parable of St. Matthew, Battle Piece, Christ and the Doctors, Naples Museum; Court Scene, Landscape, Palazzo Colonna, Rome; Prometheus, Four Battle Pieces, The Giant Titius, Palazzo Corsini, Rome; St. Roch, Landscape, Belisarius, Palazzo Doria, ib.; The Painter and Satyrs, Palazzo Chigi, ib.; Battle Piece, Tobias and the Angel, Samuel appearing to Saul, Louvre, Paris; Bay and City of Salerno, Madrid Museum; Stormy Sea, Berlin Museum; Jonah threatening the Inhabitants of Nineveh, Cadmus and Minerva, Italian Seaport, Co-

ROSS, Sir WILLIAM CHARLES, born in London, June 3, 1794, died there, Jan. 20, 1860. Miniature painter, son and pupil of Mrs. Maria Ross (1760-1836), portrait painter, and student of Royal Academy in 1808. In 1809 he exhibited several classical works at the Academy, and up to 1826 his canvases were mostly large. In 1814 became assistant to Andrew Robertson, miniature painter, but soon found a fashionable following of his own. Among his distinguished sitters were the Queen and Prince Consort of England, the King and Queen of Belgium, Louis Philippe, Louis Napoleon, and King and Queen of Portugal. Elected an A.R.A. in 1838, R.A. in 1843, and knighted the same year. His portraits are rich in colour, and strongly individualized; the influence of Reynolds is apparent in his style. His best work in the Chapel is the Sermon on the Mount, to which the three others—Moses delivering the Tables of the Law, Passage of the Red Sea, and The Last Supper—are inferior. ROSSETTI, GABRIEL CHARLES DANTE, born in London, May 12, 1828, died at Birchington, near Margate, April 9, 1882. Figure painter, son of Gabriele Rossetti (Italian patriot, commentator on Dante, and professor of Italian in King's College, London). Dante Gabriel, as he wrote his name, was a student at Cary's drawing school, at the Royal Academy, which he left about 1848, and of Maddox Brown, who had a perceptible influence on his work. Finished his first oil picture, Portrait of his Father, in 1847, and two years later exhibited his Girlhood of Mary Virgin, from which, with Millais's Isabella and Holman Hunt's Rienzi, is dated the rise of the Pre-Raphaelite school of painting in England. Rossetti contributed both by pen and pencil to "The Germ," the organ of the Brotherhood, in which first appeared his "Blessed Damozel" and other poems; indeed, he is better known as a poet than a painter, for he lived a retired life and exhibited but few of his works, most of which are now in private collections in England. His early pictures show a gradual transition from austere mediævalism to a more florid and fanciful romanticism. Many of his subjects were drawn from the "Divina Commedia" and "Vita Nuova" of Dante. His collected works were exhibited at the Royal Academy and Burlington Club, London, in the winter of 1882-83. Works: Girlhood of Mary Virgin (1849), Lady Louisa Fielding; Ecce Ancilla Domini (1850); Dante's Meeting with Beatrice at a Marriage Feast (1851), Mr. Leathart, near Newcastle; Dante's Dream of Death of Beatrice (1855), Miss Heaton of Leeds; Wedding of St. George (1857); Mary in House of John (1858); Altarpiece for Llandaff Cathedral (1860); Venus Verticordia (1863); Joan of Arc, Rose Garden, Lady Lilith (1864), Alexander Stevenson, Tynemouth; Sibylla Palmifera (1866), Mr. George Rae, Birkenhead; Sir Tristram and Yseult (1867); Vision of Dante (1870), Liverpool Gallery; replica (1878), Mr. William Graham; Veronica Veronese (1872); La Ghirlandata (1873), Mr. Ruston, M.P.; Proserpina (1874; replica, 1877, Mr. Turner), La Pia, Salutation of Beatrice (1881), Mr. F. ROSSO, IL, or ROSSO DE' ROSSI, born in Florence, March 8, 1494, died at Fontainebleau, France, 1541. Florentine school; real name Giovanni Battista di Jacopo di Gasparre, but commonly called by the Italians Il

Rosso, and by the French, Maitre Roux de Roux, which would seem to show that Roux was his family name, and not a surname given to him because his hair was red. Imitator of Andrea del Sarto and of Michelangelo. After painting frescos in Florence he went to Rome and worked there several years, until obliged to leave on the capture of the city by the Constable de Bourbon (1527). About 1531 he went to Paris, at the invitation of Francis I., who made him court painter, and employed him to direct the decoration of the great gallery in the Palace of Fontainebleau. His large salary enabled him to live in luxury, and his good address and polished manners made him a favourite at court. Having unjustly accused his friend and assistant, Francesco di Pellegrino, of stealing money from him, and caused him to be put to the torture, Il Rosso poisoned himself to escape dishonour. All his works at Fontainebleau have disappeared. Among his pictures are: Entombment, Contest between Muses and Pierides, Louvre; Madonna with Saints, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; Assumption, SS. Annunziata, Florence; Marriage of the Virgin, S. Lorenzo, ib.; Venus, Ceres, Pluto, Diana, Zeus, Oldenburg Gallery; Madonna with Angels, Hermitage, St. Petersburg. —Vasari, ed. ROTTMANN, KARL, born at Hand-schuchsheim, near Heidelberg, Jan. 11, 1797, died in Munich, July 6, 1850. Landscape painter, son of Friedrich Rottmann (died 1817), a quite skilful draughtsman and painter in water-colours; first instructed in Heidelberg by his father and the portrait painter Xeller, much influenced by Karl Polhr, with whom he was intimately associated, but formed himself chiefly by studying from nature and after the works of Poussin and Josef Koch; settled in Munich in 1822, visited Italy in 1826-28 and Greece in 1834-35; became court painter in 1841. His artistic work may be divided into three periods: during the first he attached less importance to colouring than to drawing; the second is illustrated by the 28 Italian landscapes in fresco in the arcades of the royal garden at Munich; the third by the 23 Greek landscapes placed in a special room in the Munich Gallery. He was one of the most individual masters in Germany, and his influence on landscape painting was paramount. Works: Castle Heidelberg in Evening Light, Burg Eltz (before 1822); Ramsau Valley (1823); View in Roman Campagna, Coliseum in Rome (1826-28); View of Palermo, do. of Taormina (1829); Bay of Baiæ; Burning Forest; Ammer Lake, Marathon, National Gallery, Berlin; German Cemetery near Nauplia, Temple of Ægina, Raczyński Gallery, ib.; Views in Greece (3), Carlsruhe Gallery; View of Cefalù (1839), Cologne Museum; View on the Obersee, Darmstadt Museum; View near Corinth, Bay and Harbour of Corfu, Kunsthalle, Hamburg; View of Corfu, Lake Copais in Bœotia (2), Leipsic

ROUSSEAU, (PIERRE ÉTIENNE)

THÉODORE, born in Paris, April 15, 1812, died at Barbizon, near Fontainebleau, Dec. 22, 1867. Landscape painter, pupil of Rémond (1826) and of Lethière. Showed himself a true "naturalist" in his first picture (1826) and up to 1848—when his works, after being for thirteen years excluded from the Salon by the academical jury then abolished, were readmitted—fought the battle of naturalism with varying success. With Corot, Daubigny, Dupré, and Diaz, he founded the modern French school of landscape painting, of which he is one of the chief glories. Few if any have surpassed him in the rendering of atmospheric effects, in the ability to diffuse light and air throughout a landscape, and in the power of communicating to others the deep feelings excited by nature in a highly sensitive organization like his own. The Forest of Fontainebleau, where he spent many years of his life, supplied him with an inexhaustible mine of subjects, which he rendered with rare felicity. Always in more or less needy circumstances, he was at the last annoyed by an intrigue about the Officer's Cross of the Legion of Honour, and finally died of a broken heart. Medals: 3d class, 1834; 1st class, 1849, 1855; medal of honour, 1867; L. of Honour, 1852. Flemish school; studied at Antwerp with Tobias Verhaegt and Adam van Noort, and then with Otto van Veen from 1596 until 1600, when he went to Venice, where his copies after Titian and Giorgione attracted the notice of the Duke of Mantua, Vincenzo Gonzaga I., who made him his court painter. In July, 1601, the Duke sent Rubens to Rome to copy pictures for his gallery, with a letter of recommendation to the Cardinal Montalto. Having executed the Duke's commission, and painted a triptych for the Chapel of St. Helena in the Church of Sta. Croce in Gerusalemme, by order of the Archduke Albert, Rubens returned to Mantua early in 1603. In March he was sent to Spain as the Duke's messenger, with presents for the King and certain high dignitaries. The pictures which formed part of them, chiefly by an inferior artist, Pietro Fachotti, having been much damaged en route, were restored at Valladolid by Rubens, and as two were irreparably injured he painted his Democritus, and Heraclitus, now in the Madrid Museum, to replace them. He also painted an equestrian portrait of the Duque de Lerma and several portraits of beautiful Spanish women for the Duke of Mantua; after which he returned to Mantua at the end of April, 1604, and painted an altarpiece for the Church of the Trinity. The wings were destroyed in 1797 during the French occupation, but the central piece, representing the Trinity, is preserved in the public library at Mantua. At the end of 1605 Rubens went to Rome to continue his studies. In July, 1607, he met the Duke at Genoa, and in the course of six or seven weeks made 139 sketches of palaces, afterwards published at Antwerp (1613). At this time, perhaps, he modelled the bust of Spinola, still preserved in the family palace, and received a commission from the Marchese Pallavicini for his picture of Ignatius Loyola, which he sent from Antwerp in 1620. Returning to Rome in 1607, Rubens finished his picture of Pope Gregory the Great with Saints (sent to Grenoble by Napoleon in 1811), and in the autumn of 1608, having received news of the dangerous illness of his mother, he returned to Antwerp, where he arrived in November, after her death. Depressed, and homesick for Italy, he would soon have gone back to Rome had not the Archduke Albert, moved by the commendations of Otto van Veen, Rubens's old master, treated him with much consideration at Brussels, and commissioned him to paint his own portrait, that of the Infanta Isabella, a Holy Family for the oratory of his palace, and a large altarpiece for the church at Candenburg, the triptych of S. Ildefonso, now in the Museum at Vienna. In 1609 the Archduke made Rubens his court painter, gave him a gold chain and medal, and granted him numerous privileges. Renouncing his intention to return to Italy, Rubens obtained permission to fix his residence at Antwerp, where, on October 13, 1609, he married Isabella Brandt. Commissions now crowded upon him to such an extent that at the beginning of 1611 he had refused more than one hundred. Among the works of this time are the Delivery of the Keys, Church of St. Gudule, Brussels; The Erection of the Cross, Notre Dame, Antwerp; and an Adoration of the Magi, Antwerp Museum; the St. Therese, the St. Anne, and the Dead Christ in the same collection. Enriched by inheritance, by his wife's dowry, and by his own labours, Rubens in 1611 built himself a beautiful house at Antwerp with a round gallery lighted from above, which he decorated with his copies, original works, and acquired objects of art. In September of the same year he agreed to paint for the guild of the Harquebusiers the great altarpiece with wings, which was finished in 1612, and since 1614 has decorated their altar in the Antwerp Cathedral. The different paintings upon it are the famous Descent from the Cross, the Visitation, the Presentation, and the St. Christopher and a Hermit. Having numerous pupils, and constant demands for original works, Rubens spent eleven years at Antwerp, and then went to Paris in February, 1622, at the call of Maria de' Medici, to decorate the Luxembourg Palace with twenty-one great pictures, now in the Louvre, representing the history of her life up to the period of her reconciliation with her son, Louis XIII. In 1622-23 he returned to Paris to consult with the Queen, and again in 1625. Bringing with him nineteen finished pictures, he remained there to finish the rest. Every effort was made to induce him to remain in France, but in vain. At Paris he had made the acquaintance of the Duke of Buckingham, who visited him at Antwerp and eventually purchased his collection for about 100,000 florins. In 1626 (July) Isabella Brandt died, to the great grief of her husband, who honoured her with splendid funeral ceremonies. In 1624 Philip IV. of Spain ennobled Rubens, and the Archduchess Isabella made him her gentleman in waiting. In 1627 she sent him to England with the title of ambassador to act as mediator in negotiating peace between that country and Spain. This obliged him to visit Spain in August, 1628, where he was treated with great honour by the King and became intimate with Velasquez, upon whom he had great influence. In nine months Rubens painted forty pictures and made copies of all the pictures by Titian in the Royal Gallery. In 1629, after a short visit to Antwerp, he was sent as ambassador to King Charles I., whose portrait he painted, and who on his departure created him Knight of the Golden Spur, Feb. 21, 1630. Once more he was sent to Spain to conclude the peace negotiations with Philip IV. He then returned home and on Dec. 6, 1630, married Helena Fourment, his niece by marriage. For Charles I. Rubens then painted nine pictures, and designed for the Banquet Hall at Whitehall a ceiling representing the allegorical history of James I. He also began a series of pictures for the gallery of Henri IV. in the Luxembourg, six of which were far advanced when the exile of Maria de' Medici, in 1631, interrupted the work. In 1631 he resumed his diplomatic career, in order to bring about a peace between the North and South of the Low Countries. This entailed much trouble and annoyance upon him, and the death of his protectress, the Archduchess Isabella, in 1633, greatly afflicted him. He also suffered much with the gout, but nevertheless continued to paint with the same wonderful facility and power. In 1635 he designed eleven allegorical compositions to decorate the triumphal arches raised in honour of the entrance of Ferdinand, Governor of the Low Countries, into Antwerp. His last picture, the Crucifixion of St. Peter, (1638), painted for the banker Jabach, was delivered to its owner after the painter's death, and placed in the Church of St. Peter at Cologne, where it still exists. The works of this great artist, many of which were wholly for partially painted by his scholars after his designs, are between two and three thousand. Of these 286 represent antique subjects, historical or mythological. The following is a list of some of the most remarkable: Fall of the Damned, Suermondt Museum, Aix-la-Chapelle; Madonna with Saints, Flight into Egypt, Diana and Nymphs surprised by Satyrs, Mars crowned by Victory, Portrait of an Oriental, Cassel Gallery; Last Judgment, Lion Hunt, Fall of the Damned, Woman of the Apocalypse, Nativity, Battle of the Amazons (1619), Trinity, Entombment, Martyrdom of St. Lawrence, Meleager and Atalanta, Massacre of Innocents, Samson and Delilah, Castor and Pollux, Silenus and Satyrs, Susanna, Portrait of Rubens and Isabella Brandt, Helena Fourment under a Colonnade, do. with her Boy, A Scholar (1635), Dr. van Thulden, Lord and Lady Arundel, Philip IV. of Spain, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Rubens' Sons, eleven Portraits, Diana and her Nymphs, Wild Boar Hunt, Garden of Love, Judgment of Paris, Dresden Museum; St. Ignatius Loyola exorcising Demons, Assumption, Magdalen, St. Francis Xavier Preaching, Portrait of Rubens, Four Quarters of the Globe, Portrait of the Archduchess Anna Maria, Altarpiece of St. Ildelfonso, Festival of Venus, Cimon and Iphigenia, Meleager and Atalanta, Portraits of Emperor Maximilian and of Philip le Bon, Vienna Museum; Rubens' Sons, History of Death of Decius Mus, Liechtenstein Gallery, Vienna;

RUISDAEL, JACOB VAN, born in Haarlem about 1625 (?), died there, buried, March 14, 1682. Dutch school ; landscape painter, son and pupil of Izack van Ruisdael, probably also pupil of his uncle Salomon van Ruisdael ; became the greatest landscape painter of the Dutch school. In 1648 he joined the guild of St. Luke at Haarlem, and in 1659 obtained the rights of citizenship at Amsterdam. Little appreciated by his contemporaries, he gained a scant maintenance by his art, and in 1681 became so impoverished that some of his fellow members of the Mennonite sect petitioned the Burgomaster of Haarlem to admit him to the public hospital. Many of his landscapes represent views in the environs of Haarlem and about Bentheim. His early works are remarkable for minute finish of accessories. The figures introduced in Ruisdael's landscapes are by Berchem, Adriaan van de Velde, Wouwerman, Lingelbach, Vermeer, and Eglon van der Neer. Ruisdael was an admirable etcher. Entered the Haarlem guild in 1623, and was its president in 1648. While his earlier works are scarcely distinguishable from those of his model, his later pictures are more mannered in the treatment of foliage and more powerful in colour. Works: Coast View with Vessels, Antwerp Museum; Ferry Boat (1647), River Bank with Fishermen, Brussels Museum; Village Inn (1655), Halt (1660), Amsterdam Museum; The Meuse at Dordrecht, Rotterdam Museum; Herdsmen driving Cows (1614), River Landscape, Aschaffenburg Gallery; Dutch Canal (1642), four others (two dated 1631, 1656), Berlin Museum; Ferry (1652). RUIZ DE LA IGLESIA, FRANCISCO IGNACIO, born in Madrid in 1648, died there in 1704. Spanish school; pupil of Camilo and of Carreño; painted a fresco in the queen's antechamber in the Alcázar so acceptably that he was made in 1689 painter to the king, an honour confirmed by Philip V. He painted portraits of Philip V. and of his first queen, Maria Louisa of Savoy, and sacred subjects for churches.—Stirling, iii. 1037.

SARTO, ANDREA DEL, born in Florence, July 16, 1486, died there, Jan. 22, 1531. Florentine school; real name Andrea d'Angelo di Francesco, but called Del Sarto because his father Angelo or Agnolo was a tailor (sarto). According to some, his family name was Vannucchi; but this "never had any foundation in fact" (C. & C.). Andrea first studied with a goldsmith, then with Gian Barile, a poor painter, and lastly

*Florence, five frescos illustrating the life of St. Philip, which won him the reputation of being one of the best fresco painters of his time. In 1514 he finished a Procession of the Magi, in the Court of the Servi, and the Nativity of the Virgin, the latter of which is "on the highest level ever reached in fresco" (C. & C.). Equally great is the Holy Family called the Madonna del Sacco (1525), in the cloister of the SS. Annunziata, and scarcely inferior are the Birth of St. John (1526), at the Scalzo, and the Last Supper (1526-27), in S. Salvi, Florence. Among Andrea's monochromes at the Scalzo (1516-1526), the Sermon of St. John is especially remarkable. While engaged in painting frescos, Andrea produced many easel pictures no less worthy of praise. In 1518 he went at the invitation of Francis I. to France, and painted there, among other pictures, the Michelangelesque Charity, now in the Louvre. The next year Andrea returned to Florence to buy works of art for the King, but having used the money intrusted to him in building a house for himself, he dared not go back to France empty-handed, and remained in Florence secure from pursuit until the plague which followed the siege of that city in 1530. Charles Blanc calls Del Sarto the Raphael of Florence, and says that if Raphael had never lived, Andrea del Sarto would have occupied the first place in art after Leonardo da Vinci and Michelangelo. Even in his own time he was called Andrea "senza errori" (An-* drea the Faultless). His drawing is excellent, his modelling is always good, and his colouring has a freshness and a luminous transparency not found in any other painter of the Florentine school. His Madonnas are exquisite, some of them rivalling in loveliness even those of Raphael; but their beauty is only a superficial beauty—they want depth of soul; and this is why Andrea occupies a lower place in the history of art than that to which his great powers would seem at first to entitle him. Among his best easel pictures are: Four Saints and Two charming Angels holding a Scroll, Florence Academy; Annunciation (2), Dispute about the Trinity (1517), Madonna with Saints, Holy Family (2), History of Joseph, Madonna in Glory and Saints (1525), Assumption (2), Deposition, John Baptist, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; Madonna delle Arpie (1517), St. James and Children, Portrait probably of himself, Uffizi, Florence; Charity, Holy Family (2), Louvre; Holy Family and Saints, St. Barbara, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Madonna and Saints, Berlin Museum; Marriage of St. Catherine, Madonna with Cherubs, Sacrifice of Abraham, Dresden Gallery; Tobias and Angel, Pieta, Vienna Museum; Sacrifice of Abraham, Holy Family, Madonna (3), Assumption, Female Portrait, Madrid Museum; Holy Family, Portrait of del Sarto, National Gallery, London.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 542; Vasari, ed. He afterwards studied and copied the works of the great masters in Rome, and became in some sort the rival of Carlo Dolcei, devoting himself principally to painting Madonnas and devotional pictures, in which sweetness of expression is carried to the extreme of insipidity. Their style is dissimilar, Dolcei excelling him in strength of colour, and in fineness of pencil. Sassoferrato's masterpiece, the Madonna del Rosario, is in S. Sabina, Rome. SCHEFFER, ARY, born at Dordrecht,

Feb. 10, 1797, died at Argenteuil, June 15, 1858. History and portrait painter, son of Johann Baptist Scheffer; pupil of Guérin. Sympathizing neither with the classic school represented by his master, nor with the romantic led by Géricault and Delacroix, Scheffer took up a class of subjects which showed his sympathy with the cause of freedom, such as the Suliote Women, an episode of the Greek war, and the Battle of Morat. Influenced by Ingres, he sought and obtained greater purity of form, and painted subjects from Goethe and Byron. In 1836 he was appointed art instructor to the Orléans family, and directed the studies of the Princess Marie in sculpture. In 1836 he accompanied the Duc d'Orléans and General Bandrand, whose widow he afterwards married, to the siege of Antwerp, and after his return painted several military episodes for Versailles. Between 1835 and 1848 he produced his greatest works, the Christus Consolator and Judex, the Francesca and the Mignons. When the Revolution broke out Scheffer assisted the King and his family in their escape from Paris, and then went to Holland and England for rest. The coup d'état of 1852, which gave Louis Napoleon the throne, was a blow to his hopes which finally disgusted him with politics, from which he withdrew altogether. Five years later, after a last visit to England, he lost his friends Manin and the Duchesse d'Orléans, to whom he was much attached. After attending the funeral of the latter he returned much broken to France, and shortly after died. In his earlier pictures Scheffer showed his sympathy with human suffering; in those of his second period his love for the elevating influences of the great poets; in his third his faith in the Christian religion, and his aspirations to a higher life. The works of his middle period, the Christ in the Garden (1839), the Macbeth, and the Francesca, are vigorous and deep in colour, while those of a later period, the Beatrice, the Temptation, etc., are pale and somewhat monotonous in tone. In both, however, there is a depth of feeling and a purity of sentiment which characterized the man no less than the painter. Officer of the Legion of Honour, 1825. Works: Abel and Thirza (1812); Death of St. Louis (1817); Convalescent Mother (1818), Pereire Collection, Paris; Patriotism of Six Citizens of Calais, Socrates defending Alcibiades at Potidea (1819); The Tempest (1820); Soldier's Widow (1821); Young Orphans; Christening; Burning of a Farm House; The Shades of Francesca da Rimini and her Lover appearing to Dante and Virgil (1821); St. Louis visiting the Plague-Stricken (1822); Seaman's Family (1823); Baptism (1823), King of the Belgians; Little Woodcutter; Return Home; Mother with Two Children mourning (1824), Königsberg Museum; War Scene in Alsace in 1814, Burial of young Fisherman (1824); Death of Géricault (1824), Louvre; St. Thomas Aquinas encouraging People in a Storm at Sea (1824), Church of St. Thomas, Paris; Gaston de Foix found among the Dead at Ravenna (1824), Versailles Museum; Greek Girls Praying to the Madonna, Last of the Missolonghi Garrison (1826); Suliote Women (1827), Eberhard the Weeper (1831), Louvre; Charlemagne submitting his first Capitularies to the Assembly of the Franks (1827), Charlemagne and Wittikind, Versailles Museum; Battle of Morat, Sister of Charity (1829); Leonora (1829); Faust in his Study, Marguerite at the Spinning Wheel (1831), Baroness Rothschild, Paris; Christ and the Children (1830, 1840); Martha and Marguerite (1830), King of the Belgians; The Duc d'Orléans (Louis Philippe) receiving the First Hussars (2, 1831), Versailles Museum; Marguerite at Church (1832), Samuel Ashton, London; The Giaour (1832); Medora (1833); Alasuerus (1834); Francesca da Rimini (1834), Sir Richard Wallace, London; replica (1855), Mme. Massacre of Scio, Eugène Delacroix, Louvre, Paris.

ft. 6 in.; signed. Scene after the massacre. In the foreground, Greek families, seated on the shore, await their fate; among them are the dead and the dying, old men in despair, and young women doomed to slavery; behind them, a Turk on a prancing steed is dragging at his horse's tail a nude young girl, who throws up her arms in a vain effort to hide her shame; in the background, the city, with flames and smoke and scenes of violence. Salon, 1824; bought by State (6,000 francs); Exposition universelle, 1855.

Engraved by Masson. Lithographed by Blanchard. Delacroix had never been in Greece when he painted this picture, which was one of his ablest protests against the classic school.—Chesneau, Œuvre de Delacroix, 30; Larousse, xiv. 404; Annales du Musée, Salon de 1824, i. Pl. 33.

SCOREL (Schoreel, Schoorle), JAN VAN, born at Schoorl, near Alkmaar, Aug. 1, 1495, died at Haarlem, or at Utrecht, Dec. 6, 1562. Dutch school. History, portrait, and landscape painter, pupil of Willem Cornelisz in Haarlem (about 1509–12), of Jacob Cornelisz in Amsterdam, and of Mabuse in Utrecht; afterwards studied perspective and architecture at Cologne, and at Speyer with a priest, as also painting at Strasburg, Basle, and at Nuremberg with Albrecht Dürer, whom he left on account of the latter's strong adherence to Luther's teachings. He then worked in Styria and Carinthia (1520), and from Venice went to Jerusalem, returning whence he stopped in Rome and was appointed overseer of the Vatican Gallery by his countryman, Pope Adrian VI, after whose death he went back to Utrecht; moved to Haarlem and taught there about 1527, but soon returned to Utrecht. From his school issued Martin Heemskerck and Antonis Mor. Greatly influenced by his sojourn in Rome, he was the first Dutch painter in the Italian style; his finest pictures were destroyed by the Iconoclasts. Those still existing are distinguished for vigorous conception, pleasing expression, a warm tone of brownish colour, and careful execution. Of late attempts have been made to identify him with the Master of the Death of Mary. SEBASTIANO DEL PIOMBO. See Piombo.

SEBASTIAN, ST., according to the legend, was commander of a company of the Prætorian Guards and a special favourite of Diocletian; his fervent Christianity having made him obnoxious to the Emperor, the latter ordered him to be bound to a stake and shot to death with arrows. Irene, widow of a martyr, going with others to take his body for burial, found that none of the arrows had penetrated a vital part, and carrying him to her home nursed him to health again. Diocletian, infuriated, had him beaten to death with clubs and his body thrown into the Cloaca Maxima. The martyrdom of St. Sebastian is a favourite subject with painters, and many of the great artists have left representations of it.

The winner sold it for 9,000 francs to Durand Ruel, who resold it for 15,000 francs to Mr. Barlow, an Englishman, from whom it passed to Mr. Wallis, who sold it to Mr. Walters for $10,000.—Larousse, xiv. 445.

Salon, 1836; bought by State for 3,000 francs and given to the factory at Nantua; sold in 1869 to M. SHARPLES (Sharpless), JAMES, born in England in 1751, died in New York, Feb. 26, 1811. Of a Roman Catholic family, he was educated in France for the priesthood; studied art in London under George Romney (?), married, and sailed for America in 1784 with his wife and three children, but was taken by the French, carried into Brest, and imprisoned several months. On his liberation he again embarked, and reached New York in safety. Travelling in a four-wheeled carriage with one horse he visited the principal cities and towns of the United States to paint the portraits of notable persons, of which he made a large collection. Though he worked some in oils most of these were executed in pastels. A hundred and thirty-four of the latter are preserved in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, but few of his oil pictures are extant. Two portraits of Washington and one of Mrs. Washington, painted from life about 1796 and taken soon after to England, have lately been brought to this country for sale. Sharples returned to New York in 1809. His wife and daughter Rolinda were both painters of portraits. Mrs. Sharples exhibited pastels of Gen. Washington and Dr. Priestley (now in the National Portrait Gallery) at the Royal Academy in 1807. She worked at Bath and Bristol, England, and left all her property to found an art institution in the latter city, where she died in March, 1849. Rolinda, who exhibited at the Academy in

born in Cortona in 1441, died there in 1523. Tuscan school ; pupil in Arezzo of his uncle, Lazzaro Vasari, and of Pietro della Francesca, with whom he remained until 1460. The evident influence of Antonio Pollajuolo and Andrea Verrocchio upon Signorelli makes it probable that he spent a portion of his time at Florence before 1472, and from 1474 to 1476—years of which no record is preserved—in association with these masters. According to Vasari, his first work (1472) was the decoration of the chapel of S. Barbara, in S. Lorenzo at Arezzo, no longer extant. The first certain notice of him is at Città di Castello, in November, 1474, as occupied in painting the now destroyed colossal figures of SS. Jerome and Paul on the exterior of the tower of the City Hall. Of the next four years we know nothing. Vasari tells us that he painted at Siena, and after finishing a work at S. Agostino went to Florence to study dead and living masters, and was employed by Lorenzo de' Medici; but the altarpiece at S. Agostino was not painted until 1498, six years after Lorenzo's death. During an earlier visit to Florence, he perhaps painted the School of Pan for Lorenzo, now in the possession of the Marchese Corsi. His first great works still extant are supposed to be the frescos in the S. Casa at Loreto, which betray Florentine influence and the assistance of Don Bartolommeo della Gatta, whom Signorelli probably knew at Arezzo in 1472, and by whom he was called to Loreto between 1476 and 1479. Here Signorelli reveals his identity in the Apostles, Church Fathers, and Evangelists, the Conversion of St. Paul, and the Unbelieving Thomas. About the beginning of September, 1479, he returned to Cortona, where he was elected one of the priors in the following February. The date of Signorelli's fresco of the History of Moses, in the Sistine Chapel, is unknown; but as he was commissioned to paint it by Sixtus IV., who died in 1484, it must have been executed before that year. To this time also belongs an altarpiece of the Virgin and Saints, painted for the Vannucci Chapel, in the Cathedral at Perugia. In the year 1491 he painted an Annunciation for the Chapel of S. Carlo, in the Cathedral at Volterra, and a picture of the Madonna and Saints, now in the Public Gallery of that city. Being highly esteemed as an artist at Florence, Signorelli was made a member of the committee of artists appointed in 1491 to sit in judgment on designs sent in for the construction of the façade of the Cathedral. In 1493 and 1494 he painted an Adoration of the Magi and a Nativity for the Church of S. Agostino at Città di Castello, where his Martyrdom of St. Sebastian, of the year 1496, is to be seen in the Church of S. Domenico. To the latter year also belong the Descent of the Holy Ghost and the Crucifixion, painted for a standard, but now divided in the Church of S. Spirito at Urbino. In 1497 Signorelli began to paint eight frescos from the life of St. Benedict, in the cloister of the Convent of Monte Riveto Maggiore, near Siena, still extant, though much injured. In 1498 he completed an altarpiece for the Bicchi Chapel, in S. Agostino at Siena, the wings of which, decorated with figures of saints, are in the Museum at Berlin. He was at Siena later, in 1506 and 1509, but whether his frescos in the Palazzo Petrucci were painted then, or at an earlier period, is uncertain. They represent the Calumny of Apelles, a Bacchanal, the Chaining and Triumph of Love, Coriolanus, the Flight of Æneas and Penelope. Called to Orvieto to complete the frescos of the Cappella di San Brizio begun by Fra Angelico, Signorelli employed the greater part of the years 1500 and 1501 in painting his celebrated Last Judgment cycle, upon which he was more or less occupied up to the year 1504. To 1502 belongs the great altarpiece of the Virgin and Apostles with the Dead Christ, in the choir of the Cathedral at Cortona. The altarpiece in S. Medardo at Ancevia, near Fabriano, was painted in 1507. In 1513 Signorelli was sent to Rome with a deputation from Cortona to congratulate Leo X. on his elevation to the papacy, and it was at this time that he visited and borrowed money from Michelangelo, as recorded in the great artist's well-known letter to the Capitano di Cortona. This was Signorelli's last visit to Rome. The remainder of his life was spent at Cortona, or in its neighbourhood. In 1514 he painted the Madonna which still adorns the altar of S. Vin-cenzo in the Church of S. Domenico at Cortona, and in 1517 the Crucifixion, in the Church of the Fraternity of the Holy Cross at La Tratta. Two years later he was commissioned to paint a picture for the high altar of the confraternity of S. Girolamo Arezzo, now in the Church of the Nuns of S. Spirito, which, when finished, was brought there from Cortona (says Vasari) on men's shoulders. Signorelli visited Arezzo in 1520, to place the picture; and Vasari, then eight years old, saw him and spoke with him, as he relates. After his return to Cortona, SIMONE DI MARTINO (Martini) born in 1285 (?), died at Avignon, July, 1344. Sieneſe ſchool; ſon of one Martino and brother-in-law to Lippo Memmi, whence Vasari's error in calling him Simone Memmi. Sometimes called alſo Simone da Siena. Vasari probably errs in making him the pupil of Giotto, he being obviously a follower of the purely Sieneſe manner improved by Dueccio. This is clear from the earlieſt of his frescos in the Sala del Conſiglio of the Palazzo Pubblico, Siena, dated 1315. In 1320 he painted for S. Caterina of Piſa an altarpiece in ſeven compartments, now diſmembered, ſix of the panels being in the Seminario Veſcovile of old S. Caterina, and the ſeventh in the Academy. This picture is in Simone's beſt manner, the tones being both powerful and clear, yet it ſhows how imperfectly he could expreſs the idea of relief. Another altarpiece, dated 1320, painted for S. Domenico of Orvieto, is now in the Fabbriciera of the Duomo, where is alſo another equally fine Madonna of the ſame period. In Aſſiſi Simone decorated the whole Chapel of St. Martin with frescos from the legend of that ſaint. In 1328 he painted in the Sala del Conſiglio in the Palazzo Pubblico, Siena, a freſco repreſenting Guidoriccio Fogliani de' Ricci on horſeback, and in 1333, with the aid of Lippo Memmi, completed the Annunciation now in the Uffizi, Florence. There is nothing to confirm the aſſertion of Vasari that Simone painted in Rome and in Florence, and the frescos in the Campo Santo aſcribed to him are obviously by another hand. In 1338-39 Simone went to Avignon, where he met Petrarch, who immortalized him in two of his ſonnets (xlix. and l. or lvi. and lvii.), and Laura, whoſe portrait he painted. This picture is now loſt. Simone adorned the portico of the Cathedral at Avignon with frescos, and the Hall of the Conſistory and two chapels in the Papal Palace, but moſt of his work is nearly obliterated. A Chriſt among the Doctors, painted at Avignon and dated 1342, is in the Royal Inſtitution, Liverpool. An altarpiece, once diſmembered and placed in different churches, is now in the Piſa Gallery. The works of his ſon Donato, who accompanied him to France, have perished.—Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 86, 91; ed. called by Vasari the mistress of Giuliano de' Medici; but it is uncertain whether this be the portrait of La Simonetta or of another mistress of humbler origin who became the mother of Clement VII. It has been engraved by Calamatta. Another portrait, formerly in the Reiset Collection, Paris, but now said to be in possession of the Duc d'Aumale, Chantilly, inscribed "Simonetta Jannensis Vespuccia," is more probably the true Simonetta. A striped scarf is loosely draped around her nude shoulders, her hair is braided with pearls, and a serpent-shaped jewel glitters on her neck. This picture is ascribed by some to Antonio Pollajuolo. A third, by Botticelli, belonging to Colonel Sterling, London, was in the Royal Academy's winter exhibition, 1886. She wears a brown robe thickly sown with pearls, a many-coloured scarf, and a head-dress decorated with pearls and a plume. A fourth, ascribed to Piero della Francesca, was sold in London, 1886, in the collection of William Graham.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 332; C. & C., Italy, ii. 424, 428; Gal. du Pal. Pitti, i. SÖDERMARK

ft. 3 in. × 4 ft. 5 in. Socrates, seated in a vaulted apartment, surrounded by his grief-stricken disciples, is about to take the cup of hemlock from the executioner, who averts his face as he presents it. Painted for M. Trudaine; belonged afterwards to M. Micauld de Courbeton. Engraved (1802) by Jean Massard, père.—Réveil, i. 59.

SÖDERMARK, JOHAN PER, born at Stockholm, June 3, 1822. Portrait painter, son of the Swedish lieutenant-colonel and portrait painter Olaf Johan Södermark (1799–1848), pupil of Stockholm Academy, while at the same time in the army; went with his father to Italy in 1845, returned via France in 1848, then studied at the Düsseldorf Academy in 1852–54, and in Paris under Couture in 1855–56. Has painted many distinguished persons of his native country; member of Stockholm Academy.

year he fixed his residence at Siena, where he founded a new school which had a brilliant though short existence. The extant works of Bazzi's first Siennese period, 1501–1507, distinguished by purity of style and very careful execution, are the Birth of Christ, and the Deposition from the Cross, in the Siena Academy; the frescos of the Miracle of the Loaves and Fishes, a Pietà, Majesty of St. Anna, a Bishop and Dominican Monks, in the Cloister of St. Anna in Creta, near Pienza; and those of the History of St. Benedict, at Monte Olivetto, near Buonevento.

In 1507 or 1508 Bazzi accompanied Agostino Chigi to Rome, where he was employed by Julius II. with Perugino on the decoration of the ceiling of the Camera della Segnatura in the Vatican, until both were displaced by Raphael. Nothing remains of his work but the flying genii bearing the papal shield in the central compartment of the ceiling. Disappointed in his hopes of further employment, Bazzi returned to Siena in 1510, leaving as a record

SODOMA, IL, Cavaliere, born at Vercelli, in Savoy, in 1477 (?), died in Siena, Feb. 15, 1549. Lombard and Siennese schools. Vasari says he had many nicknames, among others Mattaccio (crazy fellow), because he was noted as a lover of fun and of practical jests. Real name Giovanni Antonio Bazzi, wrongly called Razzi by Lanzi and others. Pupil of Martino Spanzotti, a mediocre painter of Casale; studied next in Milan, perhaps under Leonardo, 1498–1501, in which latter of his two or three years' residence in Rome two pictures in the Palazzo Borghese, a Leda and the Swan, of a Leonardesque character, and a Pietà. Examples of the next four years' work (1510–1514) at Siena are: Flagellation, Christ bound to the Column, Academy, one of his finest creations for expression, bodily form, individual character, and colouring; and Madonna with Saints, Turin Gallery, which shows that the master had then attained the full measure of his powers. In 1514 he went for the second time to Rome, and in the course of a year's residence painted the renowned frescos in the upper story of the Farnesina, the Marriage of Alexander the Great and Roxana, and the Surrender of Darius and his Family to Alexander, the first of which is one of the most admirable works of Renaissance art. Though abounding in beauty of form, countenance, and colour, it fails, like all Bazzi's historical works, in that instinctive arrangement of many details into one great whole which constitutes fine composition. It is in his single figures, the St. Sebastian, of the Uffizi, and the Christ bound to the Column, of the Siena Academy, that this master attains the highest excellence. The frescos of the Life of St. Catherine (1526) in her chapel in S. Domenico, Siena, show this; for while those which contain many figures are wanting in clearness, such groups as that of the Saint in ecstasy, supported by two women, are among the most expressive and beautiful works of their kind in Italy. His superiority in single figures is again illustrated in the frescos of the Oratory of S. Bernardino, Siena, by a comparison of the four Saints with the compositions representing the Presentation, Visitation, Assumption, and Coronation of the Virgin (1518-32). See, too, the Saints Ansano, Vittorio, and Bernardo in the Hall of the Council, Palazzo Pubblico, Siena, where there is also a fine altarpiece by Bazzi of the Madonna with St. Leonardo. Other works: Madonna de' Calzolari (1530), Siena; SS. James, Anthony, and Sebastian (1530), the Madonna investing a Bishop, with SS. Rosalia and Lucia, S. Spirito, Florence; Ecce Homo, Christ on the Mount of Olives, Christ in Limbo, frescos, Siena Academy; Altarpiece of Madonna with Saints, at Asinalunga; Madonna Enthroned, National Gallery, London; Adoration of the Magi, S. Agostino, Siena; Resurrection, Naples Museum; Sacrifice of Abraham, Duomo, Pisa; Madonna with Saints, Pisa Academy; Madonna with Saints, Florence Academy; St. Sebastian, Uffizi, Florence; Marriage of St. Catherine, Palazzo Chigi, Rome; Madonna with Saints, Lucretia, Turin Museum; Ecce Homo, Pitti, Florence.—Vasari, ed. SOGGI, NICCOLÒ, born in Arezzo in 1480, died there in 1551. Florentine school. Was taken at an early age to Florence, where he studied under Perugino. In 1512 he went to Rome under the patronage of Cardinal di Monte; accompanied him to Arezzo and painted much there for churches and companies of the town. Work but little superior to that of Domenico Pecori, whom he sometimes aided. Pictures in S. Domenico, S. Michele, S. Agostino, and the Duomo, Arezzo.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 44; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., x. 209.

SOGLIANI, GIOVANNI ANTONIO, born in Florence in 1492, died there, July 17, 1544. Florentine school; pupil of Lorenzo di Credi, with whom he worked twenty-four years; registered in guild of Florence in 1522. His later works show the influence of Fra Bartolommeo, Andrea del Sarto, and Mariotto Albertinelli. Few of his pictures have dates, except the Martyrdom of St. Arcadius (1521), in S. Lorenzo, and a Miracle of St. Dominic (fresco, 1536), in S. Marco, Florence. The Nativity, Berlin Museum, is a copy of Credi's in the Florence Academy.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 512; Vasari, ed. SOLARIO (Solari), ANDREA DA, born about 1458 at Solario, near Milan, died in Pavia about 1530. Lombard school; called sometimes Andrea del Gobbo and Gobbo da Milano, from his brother Cristoforo (Solario) del Gobbo, sculptor and architect, and sometimes Andrea Milanese. Went about 1490 with his brother to Venice, and in 1495 painted there the Madonna, Brera, Milan, which shows the influence of Milanese teaching and of the examples of Da Vinci and of Verrocchio. He probably returned soon after to Milan, where he painted in 1499 the St. Catherine, now in the Casa Poldi. In 1507-09 he was in France decorating, for Cardinal George of Amboise, the Chapel at Gaillon, destroyed in 1793. After this, many of his pictures found a market in France. He is said to have accompanied Andrea del Sarto to South Italy in 1513, and to have been employed in the Chapel of S. Gaudenzio, Naples. About 1515 he began the large altarpiece of the Assumption, in the Certosa of Pavia, which was finished after his death by Bernardino Campi. Among his works are: Christ carrying his Cross (1505), Palazzo Borghese, Rome; Crucifixion, Ma-

SOLIMENA (Solimene), FRANCESCO, Cavaliere, born at Nocera de' Pagani, Oct. 4, 1657, died in Naples, April 5, 1747. Neapolitan school; called sometimes l'Abate Ciccio and sometimes il Calabrese ringentilito (Calabrese ennobled).

Pupil of his father, Angelo Solimene, a respectable painter; afterwards of Francesco di Maria and of Giacomo del Po. Later formed a style of his own by imitating Pietro da Cortona, Lanfranco, Calabrese, Guido, and Carlo Maratti. He enjoyed a great reputation in his time, and was employed by several popes and by most of the princes of Europe; but he must be ranked with those who hastened the deterioration of Italian art. Among his works are: The Brazen Serpent, Prometheus Chained, St. John the Baptist, Artist's Portrait, Madrid Museum; Religion, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; frescos in sacristies of S. Paolo and S. Domenico Maggiore, Naples; Helioidorus, Gesù Nuovo, ib.; Diana and Callisto, Uffizi, Florence.—Lanzi, ii. 60; Burekhardt, 768, 775; Seguier, 196; Ch. Blanc, École napolitaine.

SOLIS, FRANCISCO DE, born in Madrid in 1629, died there, Sept. 25, 1684. Spanish school; his father, who had studied under Alonso de Herrera, gave him lessons in painting, but educated him for the church. Francisco preferred to paint, and with Velasquez for a friend and counsellor, bade fair to become pre-eminent in his profession; but his indolence and wealth made him a picture collector rather than a painter. Executed works for the conventual churches of Madrid, Alealá, and Valladolid, of which the best was a Virgin of the Conception, belonging to the Capuchins of the Prado.—Stirling, iii. 1022.

SOLOMON, ABRAHAM, born in London in 1824, died at Biarritz, France, Dec. 19, 1862. On a shield on the building are the names of sixteen of the principal figures, all of which are portraits. One of the most important works of the master, who received for it 1,600 florins. It remained in the possession of the arquebusiers until about 1700, when it was removed to the Hotel de Ville, where, in order to fit it into a space between two doors, it is supposed to have been reduced in size. A copy (H. 2 ft. 2 in. × 2 ft. 9 in.), now in the National Gallery, London, ascribed formerly both to Rem-

Ronde de nuit and Patrouille de nuit by French writers, and Night Watch by Sir Joshua Reynolds. It represents the gathering in broad daylight, of the Civic Guard of Amsterdam outside of their quarters, from which they are emerging at the sound of the drum calling them to practise. Captain Banning Cock and his lieutenant, Willem van Ruytenberg, in centre, are followed by the ensign, with the orange, white, and blue standard of Amsterdam, and the sergeants with their halberds; the drummer, with a dog at his heels, is beating his drum, in right hand front corner, and the guards, armed with arquebuses and pikes, are crowding through the open door behind.

brandt and to Gerard Dou, but probably painted about 1660 by Gerrit Lundens, proves that the original was cut off as shown in the accompanying outline sketch. Judging from the proportions of this copy, the original, which was placed in the Treppen-luis Museum in 1808, was formerly 12 ft. 8 in. high \times 16 ft. 6 in. long. It was restored in 1758 by Van Dijk, and again superficially in 1852 by N. Hopman. Engraved by L. A. Claessens (1797); J. W. Kaiser (1867). SOWER (Le semeur), Jean François Millet, William H. Vanderbilt Collection, New York. A sturdy peasant, bony and swart, with a bag of grain about his waist, is striding along sowing grain on a hill-side; on the other side of the slope a last ray of sun shows a pair of oxen and a man at the end of their furrow. The gesture of the sower, says Théophile Gautier, is "so beautiful that Triptolemus, guided by Ceres, on some Greek bas-relief, could not have more majesty." Painted in 1850; Salon, 1850. The first Sower (1849), Q. A. Shaw, Boston, was laid aside by Millet because the canvas was too short, and the present one painted for the Salon. Etched by Maris.—Art Treas. of Amer., iii. 86.

hatred of other artists; but his real talent is proved by his St. Dominick burning the Heretical Books, in S. Domenico. Ranuccio, Duke of Parma, invited him to his court, and he spent the rest of his days there. Other works: Prodigal Son, Æneas and Anchises, Concert, Martyrdom of St. Christopher, Louvre; Melchisedec blessing Abraham, Bologna Gallery; Painter's Portrait, Uffizi, Florence; Chastity of Joseph, Lille Museum; Christ crowned with Thorns, Naples Museum; Christ before Pilate, Parma Gallery.—Malvasia, ii. 73; *Ch. SPAENDONCK, GERARDUS VAN, born at Tilburg, March 23, 1746, died in Paris, May 11, 1822. Dutch school; flower painter, pupil of Herreyens; went to Paris about 1770, and became miniature painter to the king in 1774. His flower and fruit-pieces are almost equal to the best by Huysum. Professor of iconography at the Jardin des Plantes and member of the Institute (1781). Works: Flowers and Fruits (1789), Louvre. His brother, Cornelis (1756–1840), distinguished in the same branch, painted especially for the porcelain factory at Sèvres.—*Ch. SPAGNA, LO, born in 14—, died about 1530. Umbrian school; real name Giovanni di Pietro, but commonly called, from his nationality, Lo Spagna (the Spaniard). Called by Vasari, Giovanni Spagnuolo. Art education wholly Italian, under Perugino and Pinturicchio. Was the companion of Raphael in the school of Perugino, and his manner is a mixture of the Peruginesque and Raphaelesque without the high qualities of either. Appears first as an independent master at Todi, but usually lived at Spoleto. Among his early works are the feeble Nativity, at the Vatican, called the Madonna della Spineta, and the Adoration of the Magi, Berlin Museum (attributed to Raphael). They are Peruginesque in distribution and drawing, and Raphaelesque in accompaniments of type and drapery, and are of great interest as showing how Lo Spagna combined the methods of his master and comrade. This is further illustrated in the Madonna with Saints in the Perugia Gallery, and the Madonna in the Rovigo Gallery, assigned to Perugino. Fine frescos by him still exist at Todi, Trevi, Spoleto, Narni, Perugia, and Assisi. In 1516 Lo Spagna received the freedom of the city of Spoleto, and the following year he was elected captain of the guild of St. Luke. With none of Pinturicchio's hardness, pure and simple in style, Lo Spagna is, after Raphael, the most sympathetic of Perugino's scholars. Other works: Nativity, Louvre; Nativity, Vatican; Ecce Homo, National Gallery, London; Madonna Enthroned, in lower church, S. Francesco, Assisi; Coronation of the Virgin, Municipio, Narni; Madonna, Palazzo Pubblico, Spoleto.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 303; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xi. 53; ed. Mil., iii. 593; *Ch. SPAGNOLETTO, LO, born at Jativa, Spain, Jan. 12, 1588, died in Naples in 1656. Valencian and Neapolitan schools. Real name Josef de Ribera; pupil in Valencia of Francisco Ribalta; went when quite young to Rome, and lived, while studying, on the charity of his comrades, who nicknamed him Spagnoletto (little Spaniard). A cardinal took pity upon him, clothed him, and attached him to his household, but Spagnoletto soon ran away, declaring that he needed the spur of poverty to make him a good artist. After studying under Caravaggio he went to Parma, where the grace of Correggio temporarily influenced him; but he soon returned to the style of Caravaggio, which he even exaggerated. Having settled in Naples, where he married the daughter of a rich picture-dealer, he was appointed court painter by the Spanish viceroy, his fellow-countryman, and soon knighted by Innocent X. in 1644. Bermudez repudiates the story that he disappeared from Naples on account of the seduction of his daughter, Maria Blanca, who was also a good painter, by Don John of Austria. Among his numerous works are: Madonna, Beggar, Louvre, Paris; Dead Christ, Shepherd with a Lamb, National Gallery, London; Diogenes with the Lantern (1637), St. Mary of Egypt (1641), Deliverance of Peter (1642), Martyrdom of St. Bartholomew, do. of St. Lawrence, Jacob tending Laban's Sheep, seven others, Dresden Museum; Susanna and the Elders, Städel Gallery, Frankfort; his Portrait, St. Jerome, Uffizi, Florence; Mathematician, Philosopher, Palazzo Brignole, Genoa; Martyrdom of St. Bartholomew, Palazzo Spinola, ib.; Martyrdom of St. Sebastian, St. Jerome, Silenus and Satyrs, Naples Museum; Communion of the Apostles, and Descent from the Cross, S. Martine, Naples; Twelve Apostles, Parma Museum; St. Jerome, Quirinal, Rome; St. Jerome, Academy of St. Luke, ib.; St. Stanislas with Infant Jesus, Palazzo Borghese, ib.; St. Jerome, St. Bartholomew, Palazzo Colonna, ib.; Death of Adonis, St. Jerome, Palazzo Corsini, ib.; Hercules and Antæus, Turin Gallery; Martyrdom of St. Sebastian, two St. Jeromes, and St. Procopius, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; St. Bartholomew, Jacob's Dream, Martyrdom of St. Bartholomew, St. Francis, Hermit at Prayer, Conception, and fifty others, Madrid Museum; Joseph in Prison, Escorial.—Cean Bermudez, iv. 184; Lanzi, ii. 32; Ch. Blanc, École espagnole; Burckhardt, 767, 774; Gaz. des B. Arts (1882), xxv. 40.

found himself possessed of wealth and honours, which enabled him to live like a grandee and entertain nobles and princes in his palace. Notwithstanding his supreme position he was jealous of the advancement of others, and became chief of the infamous cabal of Naples to make war, even to the knife, on painters of rival schools employed in Naples. By the aid of his tools (Correnzio and Caracciolo), Annibale Carracci, Cavaliere d' Arpino, Guido, Gessi, and Domenichino were successively driven away, while Domenichino's death was probably hastened by poison. Ribera was made a member of the Academy of St. Luke in 1630, and was

SPASIMO DI SICILIA, Raphael, Madrid Museum; wood transferred to canvas, H. 9 ft. 10 in. × 7 ft. 6 in. Christ, on the way to Calvary, has sunk under the weight of the cross, which Simon of Cyrene offers to carry; an executioner, at left, endeavours to drag him along by a rope, while another raises his spear to strike him; but, regardless of his own sufferings, he turns consolingly to the Virgin, who, kneeling with outstretched arms, is supported by St. John and Mary Magdalen; behind them follow other women and a procession of Roman soldiers and citizens from the city gates; in the background, a mounted standard-bearer is turning towards Calvary, seen in distance. The word Spasimo (spasm) is in allusion to the SPINELLI, PARRI, born in Arezzo in 1387, died there in 1452. Florentine school; son of Spinello Spinelli, and probably his pupil, but an imitator of Lorenzo Monaco. He was a third-rate artist, below the Gerini in talent, though Vasari, his townsman, saw fit to praise him. Some of his frescos, much overpainted, exist in S. Domenico, in S. Maria della Misericordia, and in S. Francesco, Arezzo.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 25; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 198; iii. 144; ed. Mil., ii. 275; Siret, 880; Burekhardt, 493.

SPINELLI, SPINELLO, born at Arezzo about 1333, died there, March 14, 1410. Florentine school. Son of Luca Spinelli, of a Ghibelline family that took refuge at Arezzo about 1308; commonly called Spinello Aretino or d' Arezzo. Pupil of Jacopo di Casentino, and at twenty a better painter than his master. He was of great merit, following the style developed by Jacopo and by Bernardo Daddi, but rose above them and represented the spirit of Giotto's school at the close of the 14th century better than any other artist of his time. He had, indeed, many of the qualities of Giotto, though compared with him he is a bold decorator, careless of form and of detail. The Florence Academy has a Madonna with Saints and Angels, signed and dated 1391; and a church in Arezzo his Madonna della Rosa; but he is seen at his best in his frescos, especially Life of St. Benedict (1385), Sacristy of S. Miniato, near Florence; History of SS. Ephesus and Potitus (1391), Campo Santo, Pisa; Barbarossa and Pope Alexander III., Palazzo Pubblico, Siena; and Lucifer and the Rebel Angels (fragment belonging to Sir A. H. Layard, England), in S. Francesco, Arezzo.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 7; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 185; ed. Mil., i. 677; W. & W., i. 477; Burekhardt, 493, 495, 498, 504.

SQUARCIONE, FRANCESCO, born in Padua in 1394, died there in 1474. Paduan school; in 1422 he inherited enough from his father, Giovanni, a notary, to enable him to set up a tailor and embroiderer's shop. Embroidery being akin to the art of designing, he was attracted to the study of painting. In time he opened the earliest Italian art academy in his native city, where, as he says, 137 pupils were taught; and thus acquired the name of "father of painters." He travelled much and made a large collection of casts from the antique, pictures, and other objects of art for the benefit of his pupils. Though the founder of a school, he was himself comparatively unskilled as a painter, and the work from his studio was chiefly done by his disciples. His name first appears in the lists of the Paduan guild in 1441. He contracted to decorate the chapel of S. Cristoforo at the Eremitani, and intrusted the execution to Pizzolo, Mantegna, and others. He took part in decorating the Santo and the cloisters of S. Francesco, Padua, and painted an altarpiece and a Madonna for the Iazzara family, still extant. Besides Pizzolo and Mantegna, he numbered among his pupils Marco Zoppo, Dario of Treviso, and Ansuino.—C. & C., N. Italy, i.

In 1378 he became involved in the disturbances of the Ciompi, and fled for his life to Spain, where he acquired wealth in the exercise of his art. In 1387 he was again in Florence and took the freedom of the painters' company, appearing as Gherardo d' Jacopo Starna. He was painting there in 1406, after which there is no trace of him. None of the pictures attributed to him by Vasari remain, though some of the frescos in the Chapel of the Duomo at Prato, a series completed by Antonio Vite, the pupil of Starnina, may be his work.—C. & C., Italy, i. 493; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 177; ed. Mil., ii. 5; Burekhardt, 491, 497.

STEFANO DA FERRARA, born in Ferrara in 14—, died there, Jan. 17, 1500. Lombard school; real name probably Stefano Falzagalloni; pupil of Squarcione. His decorations of a chapel in S. Antonio, Padua, mentioned in 1445 by Michele Savonarola as a marvel of art, were destroyed in 1500. He also painted the Madonna del Pilastro on one of the pillars of the same church. Two pictures attributed to him in Brera, Milan: one, Madonna with Saints, is in the manner of Tura; the other, Madonna Enthroned between Saints, is rather attributable to Rondinello.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 528; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., v. 179; ed. Mil., iii. 407; Lanzi, iii. 189; Ch. Blanc, École ferraraise.

STEFANO DI GIOVANNI, first half of 15th century. Sieneese school; commonly known as Sassetta. Domenico, Cortona, are by him.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 74.

STEFANO DA ZEVIO, the younger, born at Zevio, near Verona, in 1393, died in 1450. Veronese school; called also Stefano da Verona. He was the contemporary and perhaps pupil of Vittor Pisano, but he was far from equalling him in grace, drawing, and expression. He is praised by Vasari, but the examples he has left show that he followed in the beaten track of the miniaturists, and cared more for minute finish than for drawing and modelling. Works: Fresco, Madonna and Saints, Casa Sona, Verona; Prophets, etc., over small door, S. Eufemia, Verona; Adoration of the Magi (1435), Brera, Milan.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 458; Vasari, ed. STUART, GILBERT, born in Narragansett, Rhode Island, Dec. 3, 1755, died in Boston, July 27, 1828. After some unaided efforts, he received instruction from Cosmo Alexander, a Scotch portrait painter, whom he accompanied to Scotland in 1772. The death of his master left Stuart to shift for himself, and after struggling a while at the University of Glasgow, he returned home. In 1775 he went again to England and found a friend and master in Benjamin West, who employed him as an assistant. In 1785 he set up a studio of his own with great success, getting high prices. In 1788 he visited Dublin and painted several portraits. In 1792 he returned to America. Soon after his arrival in New York, the Duke of Kent offered to send a ship of war for him if he would go to Nova Scotia and paint his portrait ; but unwisely, as he afterwards thought, he declined the offer. After working for two years in New York, Philadelphia, and Washington, Stuart settled in Boston, where he resided the remainder of his life. His portraits show great insight into character, and are remarkable for their simplicity of means. They have great individuality, excellent balance of light and shade, and generally pure colour. scape, but occasionally biblical and mythological subjects; his earlier works are heavy in tone and crude in colour, while in his later pictures he approached, in freedom of treatment and harmony of colour, the manner of his famous son. TENIERS, DAVID, the younger, born in Antwerp, baptized Dec. 15, 1610, died at Perck, near Brussels, April 25, 1690. Flemish school; genre, landscape, and portrait painter, son and pupil of David the elder; developed under the influence of Rubens, and especially of Brouwer. Master of Antwerp guild in 1632, its dean in 1644-45, was made court painter to Archduke Leopold Wilhelm, governor of the Netherlands, and settled, between 1648 and 1652, in Brussels, where he was received into the guild in 1675. He was the prime mover in the foundation of the Antwerp Academy in 1663. Equally favoured by Leopold Wilhelm's successor, Don Juan of Austria, who is said to have studied under him; he received important commissions from Philip IV. of Spain, and marks of esteem from Queen Christina of Sweden and the great in England and other countries. The Count of Fuensaldaña sent him to England to buy works by the Italian masters. He holds the first position among the genre painters of Flanders. Picturesque arrangement, exquisite harmony of colouring in all details, and a light and sparkling touch characterize his pictures, in which two periods may be distinguished—the earlier, up to 1640, in which a somewhat heavy brown tone prevails, gradually attaining, up to 1644, a luminous golden tone, and the later, up to 1660, in which he changed into a cool silvery hue; after that he again adopted a decided golden tone. In 1660 he published in Brussels a work containing about 200 engravings of pictures of the Italian and Flemish schools in the Archduke's gallery, executed from small copies made by himself from the originals. Of these copies 120 were sold in the Blenheim Palace sale (1886) for £2,002 10s. Works: Music Party, Boors Regaling, The Money-Changers, Players at Tric-Trac, eleven others, National Gallery, London; Boors Dancing (1645), Frolic in Village Courtyard (1649), Detachment of Civic Guard (1657), seven others, Buckingham Palace, ib.; Alchemist, Village Festival, five others, Bridgewater Gallery, ib.; Landscape (1649), Farmer's Family, two others, Grosvenor Gallery, THORNHILL, Sir JAMES, born at Melcombe Regis in 1676, died at Thornhill, near Weymouth, May 13, 1734. Pupil in London of Thomas Highmore; was patronized by Queen Anne, who made him her serjeant painter. When foreign painters, such as the Riccis, Laguerre, and La Fosse, were patronized, and native talent decried, he decorated walls and ceilings of public and private buildings with mythological and historical compositions, for which he was but poorly remunerated at so much per square yard. Of these the most important are eight compartments of the cupola at St. Paul's, the great hall at Blenheim, the ceiling and walls of the hall at Greenwich Hospital, and a saloon and hall at Moor Park, Herts. His Finding of the Law, an easel picture, is at All Souls' College, Oxford. His portrait of Sir Isaac Newton in his Old Age belongs to Lord Portsmouth. In 1720 he was knighted by George I., the first native painter, it is said, to receive that distinction. In 1724 he endeavoured to found a Royal Academy of Art, and failing, opened a drawing academy in his own house.—Taylor, Fine Arts in Great Britain (London, 1841); Redgrave; Sandby, i. 13; Portfolio (1872), 66.

Bolognese school; pupil in Bologna of Prospero Fontana, and of Bartolomeo Cesi; fled, on account of a quarrel, to Florence, where he studied with Passignano and assisted Poccetti. After painting in Pisa, Pescia, and other places, returned to Bologna, and improved his style by studying the works of the Carracci. His Miracle of St. Dominic, in S. Domenico, and his Presentation in the Temple, in S. M. de' Servi, established his reputation, and he soon had many commissions in Reggio, Modena, Cremona, Ferrara, and other cities, which brought him fame and fortune. His early pictures are in the style of Passignano; his later ones show the influence of Lodo-vico Carracci. He was of a melancholy disposition, and his subjects are generally pathetic and treated in sombre colours, but admirably harmonized. Among his best easel pictures are: Marriage of St. Catherine, St. Catherine in Ecstasy, Madonna in Glory and Saints, Deposition, Bologna Gallery; Deposition, Brera, Milan.—Malvasia, ii. 119; Lanzi, iii. 117; Ch. Bolognese school; real name Pellegrino di Tibaldo de' Pellegrini; sometimes called Pellegrino da Bologna; son of a poor mason, who removed to Bologna when his son was young. After studying in Bologna, Pellegrino went to Rome in 1547 and assisted Perino del Vaga in the Castle of St. Angelo, and Daniele da Volterra in Trinità de' Monti. He studied carefully the works of Michelangelo, and imitated his style so successfully that he was called by the Carracci, Michelagnolo Riformato (the reformed Michelangelo). In 1550 he returned to Bologna, where he executed some admirable works in the Palazzo Pozzi (now Palazzo dell' Istituto) and in various churches, and won reputation both as a painter and an architect. In 1586 he went, on the invitation of Philip II., to Spain, where, during the following nine years, he executed a great number of mural paintings in the Escorial, the pictures of Federigo Zuccherò having been expunged to make room for them. He returned to Milan wealthy and ennobled by the King. Domenico Tibaldi (1541-83), painter, engraver, and architect, was his brother, and not his son, as Malvasia says. Works: St. Cecilia, Museum, Vienna; Adoration of the Shepherds, Liechtenstein Gallery, ib.; Mar-

was reputed to be, in the decadence of Venetian art, though he was very far from being so as a colourist. But he has been rightly called the last great decorative painter of the Venetian school. After painting frescos in Milan and other Italian cities, he went to Wurzburg in 1750, and on his return to Venice (1753) was appointed first director of the Academy of Painting. In 1761 he was called to Spain by Charles III., became a favourite at the court of Madrid, and executed, with the assistance of his son, Giovanni Domenico (born, 1726, died after 1777), frescos in the royal palace with such success as to excite the jealousy of Raphael Mengs, then court painter. TIMÆNETUS, painter, date unknown. His pictures of a Wrestler, and a Water-Carrier, in a building near the Propylæa, Athens, are mentioned by Pausanias (i. 22, 7).

TIMAGORAS, Greek painter, of Chalcis, latter half of 5th century B.C. He defeated Panænus in a pictorial competition at the Pythian Games, and celebrated his victory in a poem.—Pliny, xxxv. 35 [58].

TIMANTHES, a celebrated Greek painter, contemporary and rival of Zeuxis and Parrhasius, native of Cythnus, about 400 B.C. Pliny says (xxxv. 36 [74]) that his pictures suggested more than they actually expressed, and showed a genius even greater than the art with which they were painted. Five only of his works are known: The Contest of Ajax and Ulysses for Arms of Achilles, with which he won the prize in competition with Parrhasius; The Death of Palamedes; a Hero preserved in the Temple of Peace at Rome; Sleeping Cyclops, a small picture in which the subject was made to appear gigantic by the introduction of some satyrs measuring his thumb with a thyrus; and the Sacrifice of Iphigenia, one of the most famous of ancient paintings. In this picture, which was painted in competition with Colotes of Teos, the artist represented Agamemnon veiled, because, most critics say, he felt a father's grief to be beyond the power of his art; but it seems more reasonable to believe that he did so in obedience to that truly Greek sentiment which demanded a certain dignity and reserve in treating the most tragic subjects. The features of the King, distorted with grief, would have violated this feeling, and an impassive countenance would have exposed the painter to the charge of coldness. Wisely, then, he hid it from sight and left its workings to the imagination. This picture is spoken of by Cicero (Orat., 22), by Quintilian (ii. 13), and by Valerius Maximus (viii. 11, ext. 6). Timanthes probably took the hint of veiling Agamemnon from Euripides (Iphig. Aul., 1550). A supposed imitation of this picture was found on a house wall at Pompeii (Mus. Borb., iv. 3).

TIMANTHES, painter, of Sicyon, 3d century B.C. Plutarch praises (Arat., 32) his picture of the Battle of Pellene, in which Aratus won a victory over the Ætolians (240 B.C.).

TIMARETE, painter, daughter of Micon the younger. She painted a Diana, preserved at Ephesus, said by Pliny (xxxv. 40 [147]) to have been in a very ancient style of art.

TIMBAL, LOUIS CHARLES, born in Paris in 1822, died there, Nov. 20, 1880. Sacred history painter, pupil of Drolling. Medals: 2d class, 1848, 1857, 1859; 1st class, 1861; L. of Honour, 1864. Works: Christ carried to Tomb, Virgin and Magdalen at Foot of the Cross (1848); Christ's Agony on Mount of Olives (1849); St. John the Apostle at Ephesus (1851); Captive Jews in Babylon, Resurrection of Jairus's Daughter (1852); Madonna (1853); Christ bearing his Cross, and Portrait of Cardinal Donnet (1855); The Church Triumphant, Pierrefitte (1857); Obsequies of a Christian Martyr (1857); Madame d'Oscville, and Virgin at Foot of Cross (1858); Mass at St. Peter's (1859); St. John at Ephesus, Lyons (1860); The Studio (Princess Mathilde), St. Rose of Viterbo (1861); Chapel of St. Geneviève at St. Sulpice (1862-64); Chapel of the Catechism at St. Étienne du Mont (1865); A Venetian (1865); The Muse and the Poet (1866), Louvre; The Agony of our Lord (1867), Luxembourg Museum; mural paintings (1873-76), Church of the Sorbonne; four pictures (1877), Chapel of the Novitiate, Rennes; Burial of our Lord (1878); Presentation of the Virgin, Church of Incarville, Euro; Portraits of Vicomte Delaborde, Church Levêque, Émile Saisset, Duke and Duchess de la Rochefoucauld, Duchess de Mirepoix, and M. G. des Seguins.—Meyer, Gesch., 364; Larousse; L'Art (1880), xxiii. 216; Ch. Timbal, Notes et causeries sur l'Art, with a notice of his life and works by the Vicomte H. Delaborde (Paris, 1881).

TIMOCLEA BEFORE ALEXANDER, Domenichino, Louvre; canvas, oval, H. 3 ft. 9 in. × 4 ft. 11 in. Alexander, on a throne before a tent, surrounded by guards, gives her freedom to Timoclea, who is led before him by a Thracian soldier, and restores her children to her; in background, at right, Alexander's troops entering Thebes (Bœotia). Collection of Louis XIV., who bought it in 1685. Engraved by Delignon.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Musée français, i. Part 1; Filhol, ix. Pl. 643; Landon, Vies, Pl. 111.

TIMOMACHUS, a famous Greek painter, of Byzantium, probably 1st century B.C., though some place him earlier. Pliny says (xxxv. 40 [136]) that Julius Cæsar bought his two pictures, Ajax, and Medea, for eighty talents, and placed them in the Temple of Venus Genetrix. The Ajax depicted the hero in his madness, in a sitting posture, contemplating suicide (Philos., Vit. Apol., ii. 10; Ovid, Trist., ii. 525). In the other, which is highly praised by the ancient writers, Medea was represented meditating the murder of her children, but hesitating between the impulses of revenge for her wrongs and of pity for her offspring. Other works of Timomachus mentioned by Pliny (l. c.) are an Orestes (Anthol. Gr., iv. 183, 306), an Iphigenia in Tauris, a Lecythion, and the Gorgon (Medusa slain by Persens).

TINTI, GIAMBATTISTA, born in Parma about 1560, died before 1620. Lombard school; pupil of Orazio Sammacchini, but studied Pellegrino Tibaldi, and when he returned to Parma took as his models the works of Correggio and of Parmigianino. He was the last of the painters of the old school at Parma. Works: Magdalen, Parma Gallery; Mystery of the Passion, Louvre.—Lanzi, ii. 412; Ch. Blanc, École lombarde; Lavice, 256.

TINTORETTA, LA, born in 1560, died in 1590. Venetian school. Marietta Robusti, daughter and pupil of Jacopo Robusti, called Tintoretto. Acquired a considerable reputation as a portrait painter.—Ridolfi, Marav., ii. 259; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

TINTORETTO, DOMENICO, born in Venice in 1562, died there in 1637. Venetian school; son and pupil of Jacopo Robusti, called Tintoretto. Followed in his father's footsteps, but was inferior to him in invention and in colouring. More successful in portraits than in historical painting, but executed some large commissions in the Palazzo Ducale, Venice; among them, Naval Battle at Salvore, Conquest of Constantinople by Crusaders (1204), and Surrender of Zara.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

TINTORETTO, JACOPO, born in Venice, Sept. 29, 1518, died there, May 31, 1594. Venetian school. Real name Jacopo Robusti; son of a silk dyer (tintore), whence called Il Tintoretto. Pupil of Titian, who is said to have discharged him because he feared in him a future rival; but this is not probable, as Titian was nearly sixty years old at the time. Adopting as his motto Titian's colouring and Michelangelo's drawing, Tintoretto won a reputation second to none in his time; but whether he actually attained the high standard of excellence which he had set for himself is a question on which critics are divided. All, however, unite in regarding him as one of the greatest of masters in composition, drawing, and colour, and Ruskin places him above Titian and beside Michelangelo. Recognizing the unequal merit of his works, the Venetians said that there were three Tintoretts—one of bronze, one of silver, and one of gold; and Annibale Carracci said that, if sometimes equal to Titian, he was often inferior to Tintoretto. With a rapidity of execution which procured him the nickname of Il Furioso, he covered walls and ceilings with vast compositions, some of which are so slight in treatment and wanting in finish that they are little more than decorations, though often grand in design and marvellous in effects of light and shade. His Paradise, Palazzo Ducale, is the largest picture on canvas in existence. One of his most famous pictures is the Miracle of St. Mark, in the Venice

Academy. Tintoretto often treated sacred themes with a coarse realism unworthy of religious art, as in The Pool of Bethesda, and The Last Supper, in the Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice; but his mythological pictures are conceived more in harmony with their subjects. He was fond of painting the nude, and his female figures are charming. His portraits are masterly, rich in colour, and (those of old men especially) life-like. Many of the pictures assigned to him in European galleries are not genuine. Venice contains many undoubted originals, among which are: Bacchus and Ariadne, Mercury and Graces, Minerva repelling Mars, Forge of Vulcan, SS. Andrew and Jerome, St. George and Dragon, Siege of Zara, Triumph of Venice, Battle of Lepanto, Paradise, Palazzo Ducale; Death of Abel, Expulsion from Eden, Academy; Annunciation (2), Ascension, Assumption, Pool of Bethesda, Christ in the Garden, Baptism of Christ, Circumcision of Christ, Christ before Pilate, Temptation of Christ, Procession to Calvary, Crucifixion, Ecce Homo, Elijah at Brook Cherith, Ezekiel's Vision, Fall of Man, Flight into Egypt, Joshua, Last Supper, Raising of Lazarus, Magdalen, Adoration of Magi, Fall of Manna, St. Mary of Egypt, Massacre of Innocents, Miracle of Loaves and Fishes, Moses striking the Rock, Plague of Serpents, Resurrection, St. Roch, St. Roch in Glory, St. Roch in Heaven, St. Sebastian, Adoration of Shepherds, Visitation, Scuola di S. TINTORETTO PAINTING HIS DEAD DAUGHTER, Léon Cogniet, Bordeaux Museum. Tintoretto, his hair white with age, his eyes filled with tears, is painting the portrait of his dead daughter, Maria Robusti, whose beautiful features and blonde tresses, lighted by a lamp concealed behind a red curtain, make her appear rather asleep than dead. The face of Tintoretto is from his portrait in the Louvre, but that of Maria is much more beautiful than her portrait preserved at Florence. Engraved by Achille Martinet. Lithographed by Aug. Lemoine.—Larousse, xv. 218.

TITIAN or TIZIANO, born at Pieve di Cadore in 1477, died in Venice, Aug. 27, 1576. Venetian school. Real name Tiziano

TITIAN

Vecelli or Vecellio. Learned rudiments of painting at Cadore, where a Madonna in fresco, at the Casa Valleniasco, is pointed out as his first work; went to Venice at the age of nine or ten, and was apprenticed by his uncle, Antonio Vecelli, to an unknown artist, perhaps Seb. Zuccato.

After frequenting the workshops of Gentile and Giovanni Bellini, where he met Palma and Giorgione, he began to decorate house fronts and to paint Madonnas. A small Madonna of this time, in the Vienna Museum, though eclectic, is individual, while the Man of Sorrows, in the Scuola, and the Christ bearing his Cross, in the Church of S. Rocco, Venice, show that Giorgione then influenced him, as Palma Vecchio did when he painted the Sacred and Profane Love (1503 ?), Palazzo Borghese, Rome. Other early works are: Madonna with St. Anthony (1511), Uffizi, Florence; and portraits of the Doge Niccolò Marcello (1505-8), Vatican Gallery, Rome, and of Marco Barberigo, Palazzo Giustiniani, Padua. In 1508, either in competition or in association with Giorgione, Titian decorated the Fondaco de' Tedeschi, Venice, with now destroyed frescos, of whose style some idea may be formed from the rapidly executed, masterly, and brilliant frescos of Joachim and Anna, in the Scuola del Carmine, and of Three Miracles by St. Anthony (1511), in the Scuola del Santo, Padua. In this year Titian entered the service of Alfonso I., Duke of Ferrara, for whom he painted the Christ of the Tribute Money (1514), Dresden Gallery, and the Bacchus and Ariadne (1523), National Gallery, London. Between the frescos at Padua and the Bacchus, he also produced the Madonna with Saints (1512), in the sacristy of the Salute, Venice; Assumption (1518), in Venice Academy; Annunciation, in S. Niccolò, Treviso, and the Scuola di S. Rocco (1525), Venice; a Madonna with Saints (1520), S. Domenico, Ancona; Altarpiece of Brescia, in five compartments (1522), SS. Nazaro e Celso, Brescia; Madonna di S. Niccolò (1523), Vatican Gallery, Rome; and the Entombment, Louvre, Paris. This and the St. Peter Martyr are examples of Titian's powers at their height. The life of Titian was not marked by any striking incidents or vicissitudes, and was spent in unceasing labour in Venice, Mantua, Ferrara, and Padua, etc. In 1530, and again in 1532, he went to Bologna, where he met Charles V., who created him Count Palatine and Knight of the Golden Spur by letters patent, bestowed many high privileges upon him, and then, as afterwards, sat to him for his portrait. The finest among his pictures of the Emperor is Charles V. at Mühlberg (1548), Madrid Museum, once one of the great masterpieces of painting. Among Titian's earlier works are: Flora (1520), Uffizi, Florence; Laura Dianti at her Toilet (1523), Louvre; Madonna di Casa Pesaro (1526), S. M. de' Frari, Venice; Magdalen (1531 ?), Bella di Tiziano (1534), Palazzo Pitti, Florence; Venus of the Tribune (1537), Uffizi. In 1537 Titian decorated the great Hall of the Ducal Palace with the Battle of Cadore (burned in 1577); in 1539 he painted the Presentation of the Virgin, Venice Academy, and in 1545 produced the Danaë of the Naples Museum. When painting, Titian covered his canvas with low-toned opaque colour, glazed everything, and in some instances spent years over a picture. "Unlike the early Flemish painters, he and the other great Venetians," says Hamerton, "worked independent of drawn lines, and in this gave evidence of greater technical advancement. They took things by the middle and developed them in mass, with a thorough study of modelling in light and shade." Taken in their totality, Titian's pictures fairly entitle him to be called the greatest of all painters; for while others may have surpassed him in single qualities, none have equalled him in general mastery. In landscape as in figure painting, in sacred as in profane subjects, in ideal heads as in portraits, in frescos as in oils, he is "facile princeps;" and whether we chiefly prize grace, tenderness, character, and dramatic power, or drawing, composition, texture, colour, and chiaroscuro, we are sure to obtain the highest satisfaction in studying his works. The following are works not previously mentioned: Annunciation, Transfiguration, S. Salvatore, Venice; Pietro Aretino, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; do., Palazzo Giustiniani, Padua; do., Historical Society, New York; Ariosto, Cobham Hall, England; do. TRIUMPH OF RELIGION IN THE ARTS, Johann Friedrich Overbeck, Städel

Gallery, Frankfort; canvas, H. 14 ft. × 12 ft. The Madonna, with the Infant in her arms, sits enthroned in mid-heaven, surrounded by prophets, evangelists, and saints; on the earth below are some sixty painters, sculptors, and architects; in the centre a fountain, its upper waters rising into the sky, emblematical of the heavenward direction of Christian art as opposed to the idea of the ancients, who represented the stream as flowing downward from Parnassus, its lower waters falling into two basins, one of which reflects heaven, while the other receives earthly objects, thus indicating the twofold character of art. Sometimes called the Christian Parnassus and the Magnificent of Art. Painted in 1831–1840; cartoon in Carlsruhe Gallery. Engraved by Amsler.—Atkinson, 65; Overbeck, Religion Glorified by Fine Arts (translated by Macray, Oxford, 1850); Gaz. des B. Arts (1864), xvii. 135.

Nordstemmen; Reception of Henry the Lion by Sultan of Iconium.

TURA, COSIMO (Cosmé or Gosmé), born in Ferrara between 1420 and 1430, died between 1494 and 1498. Lombard school. Passed the greater part of his life in the service of the Duke of Ferrara, who made him his court painter in 1458. Vasari calls him the pupil of Galasso, who worked with him at the ducal seat of Belriguado, where Tura decorated a chapel in 1471. Previously he had furnished patterns for tapestry, and worked in the ducal studio (1457). His works of 1456 and 1468 have disappeared, but the doors of the organ (1469), representing the Annunciation, and St. George and the Dragon, now hang in the choir of the Duomo, Ferrara. Other works by Tura are SS. Jerome and Girolamo, Costabili Collection, Ferrara; Pietà, Correr Museum, Venice; Entombment, Madonna Enthroned, St. Jerome, The Virgin in Prayer, National Gallery, London; and a Madonna with Saints, Berlin Museum, which exhibits all the marked peculiarities of his style, such as extreme length of limb, violent contrasts of colour, sharp and angular drapery folds, and eccentric ornament. Tura recalls Mantegna and Piero della Francesca in his use of perspective, his treatment of architecture, and his extravagance of gesture, but he has neither the refined elegance and passion of the first nor the delicate quaintness of the second. He was an accomplished, vigorous, and painstaking artist, but he had a taste for ugliness which displays itself in forms and features.—Vasari, ed. Le Mon., iii. 42; ed. Mil., ii. 143; C. & C., N. Italy, i. 516; Cittadella, Ricordi, etc., Vita di Cosimo di Tura (Ferrara, 1869).

TURCHI, ALESSANDRO, born in Verona in 1582, died in Rome in 1650. Venetian school. Commonly called L'Orbetto, because when a child he had served as guide to a blind man; or, as some say, because he was blind of one eye. Also called Alessandro Veronese. Pupil in Verona of Brusasorci the younger, afterwards in Venice of Carletto Cagliari. Later he visited Rome, where by studying the great masters he formed a mixed style, combining Roman design with Venetian colouring. Often compared by his contemporaries to Annibale Carracci, but inferior to him. Most of his pictures are small; some painted on marble and highly finished, equal care being bestowed on all the figures. Works: Death of Cleopatra, Deluge, Samson and Delilah, Woman taken in Adultery, and Marriage of St. Catherine, Louvre; Nativity, Simeon in the Temple, Venus finding Adonis Dead, do. with Body of Adonis in her Lap, Judgment of Paris, four others, Dresden Gallery; Death of Portia, Leipsic Museum; Forty Martyrs, S. TURNER, JOSEPH MALLORD WILLIAM, born in London, April 23, 1775, died there, Dec. 19, 1851. Son of a hairdresser, in whose rooms his drawings were first exhibited; entered schools of Royal Academy in 1789, studied perspective under Thomas Malton, and architecture drawing with Hardwick; also worked with Girtin and others, in house of Dr. Monro, the art patron, for whom he made drawings. He frequently made excursions into the country, sketching views and making studies of river scenery, many in water-colours, but some in pencil. In 1799, when he became an A.R.A., he had exhibited works from twenty-six different counties in England and Wales. He became an R.A. in 1802, and about the same time visited Scotland, France, and Switzerland. Some of his best pictures in oil were exhibited after his return. In 1807 he became professor of perspective in the Royal Academy, and began his Liber Studiorum, a book of sketches in monochrome, in imitation of the Liber Veritatis of Claude, in emulation of whose style he painted about this time. Turner visited Italy three times—in 1819, in 1829, and in 1840. After a life of almost unrivalled success, in which he won all the honours his art could give, and accumulated a large fortune, he died unmarried, leaving his pictures to the nation and his funded property to found an institution for decayed artists. Thus the National Gallery came into possession of more than a hundred of his finished pictures, two of which, Sun rising in a Mist, and Dido building Carthage, were bequeathed on condition that they be hung between two Claudes. Previous to 1802 Turner was most remarkable in water-colour painting, the development of which is largely due to him. Between that time and his second visit to Italy he was distinguished for masterly execution and brilliant colouring. Most of his finest works belong to this period. During the last twenty years of his life he sacrificed form to colour; light, with its prismatic variations, seeming to have engrossed all his attention. "He went," says Ruskin, "to the cataract for its iris, to the conflagration for its flames, asked of the sea its intensest azure, of the sky its clearest gold." Turner exhibited 257 paintings and drawings at the Royal Academy, besides which he left many sketches, etchings, and book illustrations. His "Southern Coast Scenery," "England and Wales," "Rivers of France," and "Rogers's Italy," are monuments of his genius and taste. Works: Moonlight (1797), Buttermere Lake (1798), Morning on Coniston Fells (1798), Æneas with the Sibyl (1800), Mountain Scene (1800), View in Wales (1800), Fishing Boats in a Breeze (1801), portrait of himself (1802), Clapham Common (1802), Tenth Plague of Egypt (1802), Jason in search of Golden Fleece (1802), Calais Pier (1803), Holy Family (1803), Destruction of Sodom (1805), Shipwreck (1805), Goddess of Discord (1806), Blacksmith's Shop (1807), Sun rising in Mist (1807), Death of Nelson (1808), Spithead (1809), Garreteer's Petition (1809), London from Greenwich (1809), Harvest Dinner (1809), Bligh Sand (1809), St. Mawes (1809), Ruin (1809), Abingdon (1810), Windsor (1810), Apollo killing Python (1811), Hannibal crossing the Alps (1812), Cottage destroyed by Avalanche (1812), Frosty Morning (1813), Deluge (1813), Dido and Æneas (1814), Apuleia in

UBERTINI, FRANCESCO, called Bacchiacca, born in Florence, March 1, 1494, died there, Oct. 5, 1557. Florentine school; called after his father, Francesco d' Ubertino; family name, Verdi. History painter, pupil of Pietro Perugino and of Francia Bigio; further developed under the influence of Andrea del Sarto; visited Rome, probably after 1524; excelled in pictures with numerous small figures. UCCELLI or UCCELLO, PAOLO, born in Florence in 1396–97, died there, Dec. 11, 1475. Florentine school; real name Paolo Doni or di Dono, but called Uccello from his fondness for painting birds. Apprenticeship of Lorenzo Ghiberti the sculptor, who began his career as a painter. Paolo devoted himself to the study of perspective with passionate fervour; and like Mantegna, whom he knew at Padua, pushed its use to the verge of excess. He drew with a hardness of line which shows familiarity with sculpture, but his studies are corrected by the study of nature; and though his works show the crudeness of early art, they had a very great influence upon his contemporaries and successors. In his frescos in S. Maria Novella, Florence, principally subjects from Genesis, he imitated bas-relief by the use of dead colour and by the distribution of the scenes into distinct parts with in given spaces. Of easel pictures by him there remain three out of four panels representing battle scenes one in the Louvre, one in the Uffizi, Florence, and one in the National Gallery, London; the last, The Battle of St. Egidio. In the Louvre is also a portrait group, and in the Duomo, Florence, a portrait of the English Condottiere, Sir John Hawkwood, painted about 1436. The pictures attributed to Uccelli in the Munich and Prato Galleries are not genuine.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 283; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., iii. 87; ed. Mil., ii. 203; Burckhardt, 494, 536, UGOLINO, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Earl Amherst, Knole Park, England. Subject from Dante's "Divina Commedia." Count Ugolino della Gherardesca, who had betrayed the Pisans in their struggle with the Genoese, was overcome in 1288 by the Archbishop Ruggiero Ubaldini, and imprisoned, with his sons and grandsons, in Pisa in the Gualandi tower (afterwards called Torre di fame, Famine Tower) and left to starve to death. Painted in 1773; sold to Duke of Dorset for 400 guineas. Engraved by J. Dixon; A. Raimbach. — Art Journal (1860), 359; Northcote, i. 278; Beechey, i. 196.

UGOLINO DA SIENA, 13th and 14th century, died in 1339 (?). Siennese school; probably identical with Ugolino Neri, who appears in Siennese documents in 1317. Disciple of Duccio. Vasari says he painted many pictures and decorated various chapels in different parts of Italy; and that he always followed the manner of Cimabue rather than that of Giotto. No authentic picture by him is left in Italy, but an altarpiece in seven compartments, executed for S. Croce, Florence, afterwards in the Ottley Collection, England, and now scattered among private owners, shows a colour and technical execution like those of Duccio and Simone. A colossal Madonna, in the tabernacle of Or San Michele, formerly supposed to be his work, is more Florentine than Siennese in style. The wonder-working Madonna, which he painted on a pilaster of the original granary which Orcagna transformed into

VECCHIA, PIETRO DELLA, born in 1605, died there in 1678. Venetian school; pupil of Alessandro Varotari, who imitated the style of Giorgione and of Pordenone so successfully that some of his pictures have been attributed to them. Most of his works are in Venice : In S. Caterina, two scenes from the Legend of St. Catherine and the Triumph of Virginité ; in S. Giustina, St. Justina, one of his best works ; in S. Maria del Pianto, a Madonna and Saints ; in S. Bartolommeo, the Death of the Virgin ; in S. Lione, a Crucifixion ; in S. Giovanni Evangelista, four pictures ; and in the Academy, a Christ and the Money Changers. Portraits by him in Louvre and Dresden Gallery ; Young Man and Young Woman, Berlin Museum.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

VECCHIETTA, II, born at Castiglione di Valdorcina in the Siennese territory in 1412 (?), died in Siena, June 6, 1480. Siennese school. Real name Lorenzo di Pietro di Giovanni di Lando ; called Il Vecchietta (the little old man), perhaps from the age of many of his habitual models. Despite the dryness of his style he was highly esteemed during his lifetime, and stands among the best painters of the later Siennese school. His masterpiece, an altarpiece in the Cathedral at Pienza, painted about 1447, is a noble work. It represents the Ascending Virgin, our Lord, Saints Catherine and Agatha, Popes Calixtus and Pius II. (who ordered the picture), and in the upper part, six saints, patriarchs, or prophets. "In this work," says a late writer, "Vecchietta joins to the sweetness of the Siennese school a severity of drawing and a dramatic force worthy of Florence." Among his other works are frescos in the Hospital at Siena (1441) and a relic press (1445), also the decoration of several ceilings and part of the tribune of the Siennese Baptistery (1449-50), as well as an altarpiece, in the Siennese Academy and a Madonna and Saints in the Uffizi, dated 1457. Vecchietta also painted frescos in the Palazzo Pubblico, Siena, of which a St. Catherine (1460), and a Virgin of Mercy sheltering the people under her mantle and attended by saints, still survive. Much gilding, stamped and cut out in patterns, according to the fashion of the time, marks these works, which are most carefully elaborated in a precise, formal, and dry manner. This is also noticeable in Vecchietta's bronze and marble works, of which he executed many. He was also an architect and a goldsmith.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 59 ; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., iv. 209 ; ed. Mil., iii. 75, 87 ; Müntz, Tour du Monde (1882), No. 1117 ; Müntz, À travers la Toscane, 342 ; Perkins, Hist. Handbook Italian Sculpture (London, 1882), 67.

VECELLI (Vecellio), FRANCESCO, born at Cadore about 1475, died in 1560. Venetian school. Brother, probably younger, of Titian ; went about 1487 to Venice, where he studied first under Zuccato, and later with Giovanni Bellini. Having left the school of the Bellini to become a soldier, he returned to Venice after the League of Cambrai and studied with his brother, whose jealousy he is questionably said to have aroused. His earliest picture is a Madonna, in the Genova Chapel at the Pieve di Cadore, which shows that he began to paint with almost as much promise as Titian himself, but his later efforts proved that he was not of the stuff of which great painters are made, and he finally settled down to commercial pursuits at Cadore. In his Madonna with Saints, in S. Vito di Cadore, his style is vastly below that of Titian's. His frescos in S. Salvatore, Venice, and his pictures on the shutters of the organ (1530) show more power, more freedom of handling, and greater spirit than any other of his extant works ; but they lack distinction, and the figures are strained in action and overweighted in muscle. His Nativity, in Casa Ponte at Fonzaso, near Belluno, has been assigned to Titian. Other pictures by him are in the Venice Academy and the galleries of Modena, Dresden, and Berlin.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 476 ; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

VECELLI, LAVINIA, portrait, Titian, Berlin Museum ; canvas, H. 3 ft. 3½ in. × 2 ft. 7½ in. A robust girl, dressed in a yellowish flowered silk, raises with both hands, to the level of her forehead, a silver dish of fruit and flowers, as she glances back at the spectator. Painted about 1555 for Niccolò Crasso; bought in Florence, in 1832, for 5,000 thalers, from Abbato Celotti, for Berlin Museum. Replica in Lord Cowper's Collection, London, with a casket, instead of fruit and flowers, on the silver dish; from the Orléans Gallery.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 136; Waagen, Treasures, ii. 497; Ridolfi, Maraviglie, i. 253, 259.

By Titian, Dresden Gallery; canvas, H. 3 ft. 8 in. × 3 ft. 1 in. A young girl, dressed in white damask silk, her yellow hair strewed with pearls, and with ear-rings and necklace of pearls, tucks up the train of her gown with one hand and waves a palmetto fan with the other. Painted about 1555; came to Dresden from Modena; transferred in 1827 to a new canvas; fairly preserved. Copy in the Cassel Museum; another by Rubens in Vienna Museum; study in Albertina Collection, Vienna.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 135.

By Titian, Dresden Gallery; canvas, life-size; signed. A lady of mature years, in dress of green velvet, standing in a room, waving a fan of plumes. The features are different from those traditionally known as Lavinia's, and resemble those of Venus with the Whispering Cupid, in the Uffizi. Painted in 1558; sold with the Modena Collection to the King of Saxony. A masterpiece of portraiture (C. & C.). Engraved by Basso. Transferred to a new canvas in 1826.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 267.

VECELLI (Vecellio), MARCO, called Marco di Tiziano, born at Venice in 1545, died there in 1611. Venetian school; history painter, grand-nephew and favourite pupil of Titian, whom he accompanied in his journeys to Germany and Rome, and whose style, both in composition and colouring, he imitated most successfully, whence his surname. Works: Allegory on Peace of Bologna in 1529, Dogo Leonardo Donato kneeling before Madonna, Victory of the Venetians in the Morea in 1148, several others, Palazzo ducale, Venice; Christ illuminating the World, SS. Giovanni e Paolo, ib.; Altarpieces in several other churches, ib.; Crucifixion and two Episodes in Life of St. Catherine, Parish church at Cadore. His son Tiziano Vecellio, the younger, called Tizianello (born in 1570), degenerated under the influence of the mannerism prevailing at the beginning of the 17th century, but was much esteemed as a portrait painter.—Lanzi (Roscoe), ii. 168; Nagler, xix. 494.

VECELLI (Vecellio), ORAZIO, born in Venice, 1515, died there in 1576. Venetian school; second son and pupil of Titian, whom he served constantly as an assistant. He accompanied his father to Rome, where he painted Battista Siciliano, a celebrated violin player, and other persons. His portraits are praised by Vasari, but he no doubt had aid and advice from his father. Being rich, dissipated, and indolent, he painted but little, and gained little distinction. His Battle of Castle Sant' Angelo, painted in competition with Tintoretto and Paolo Veronese for the Great Council Hall in the Palazzo Ducale, Venice, was burned in 1574. His only known pictures are the shutters of the altar in S. Biagio of Calalzo, near Cadore.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 484; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xi. 322; xiii. 36; Burckhardt, 739.

VELASQUEZ, DIEGO RODRIGUEZ DE SILVA Y, born in Seville, baptized June 6, 1599, died in Madrid, Aug. 7, 1660. Spanish school ; pupil of Herrera el Viejo, and of Francisco Pacheco, whose daughter he married in 1618. Examples of his first manner are the Water Carrier, at Apsley House and the Adoration of the Shepherds, National Gallery, London, in the style of Ribera. In 1622 he went to Madrid, hoping, but in vain, to be allowed to paint the king's portrait. After some months' study at the Prado and the Escorial he returned to Seville and painted a portrait of the poet Góngora, which attracted attention. In 1623 the Duke of Olivares called him back to Madrid, presented him to the king, whose equestrian portrait he painted, and by whom he was appointed court painter. In the same year Velasquez painted a portrait of Prince Charles of England, never finished, and now lost. The visit of Rubens to Madrid, in 1628, excited the young painter's desire to visit Italy, for which he obtained the royal consent, and after finishing the famous picture of Los Borrachos, he embarked at Barcelona, July 22, 1629. After passing a year in Rome and some time in Naples, where he became intimate with Spagnoletto, Velasquez returned to Madrid early in 1631, to remain for the next eighteen years, during which he painted many of his finest works. In 1649 the king sent him to Italy to collect pictures for the royal galleries, and for the Academy which he wished to found at Madrid. With his faithful servant and pupil Pareja, Velasquez successively visited Genoa, Milan, Padua, Venice, Parma, Rome (where he painted Innocent X.), and Naples, returning home in 1651. In the following year the king appointed the great painter quartermaster-general of his household, an office which he held for eight years. During this period he painted, among other famous works, his pictures of Las Meninas (1656), and Las Hilanderas ; attended to the laborious duties of his office ; superintended the placing of pictures in the Royal Palace, Madrid, the Escorial, etc.; accompanied the French ambassador on his artistic journeys in 1659, and created a new school of painting with the magical works of his third style. In 1660 a meeting of the French and Spanish courts was fixed to take place on the Isle of Pheasants in the River Bidassoa, to celebrate the nuptials of Louis XIV. and the Infanta Maria Teresa. In March Velasquez was sent to erect a pavilion on the island, and prepare the Castle of Fuenterrabia for the royal reception. The fatigue consequent upon his great labours proved too much for his constitution. After his return to Madrid, July 31, he became alarmingly ill, and a week later, Friday, Aug. 7, breathed his last. The corpse lay in state for two days, habited in the full dress of a Knight of Santiago, and was then carried by night to the parish church of San Juan, where it was buried in the vault below the family chapel of the Fuensalidas. Under the Directory he painted military scenes; accompanied the First Consul to Italy and painted the Battle of Marengo (1804), and the Morning of Austerlitz (1808), both in the Versailles Museum; and under the Restoration produced hunting scenes, genre pictures, and landscapes. VERNET, (ÉMILE JEAN) HORACE, born in Paris, June 30, 1789, died there, Jan. 17, 1863.

History and genre painter, son and pupil of Carle Vernet, and pupil of Moreau and Vincent. When fifteen years old he supported himself by his drawings. In 1810 he exhibited his Capture of a Redoubt, in which he gave up the classical style of David and thenceforth represented nature with great truth. In 1812 he won a first medal by his Taking of an Intrenched Camp. In 1814 Napoleon decorated him with the Cross of the Legion of Honour for gallant conduct at the defence of the Barrière de Clichy, which he subsequently painted (1820). Notwithstanding his Bonapartist tendencies he received many honours after the Restoration, especially under Louis Philippe. In 1826 he became a member of the Institute; in 1828-1839 he was director of the French Academy in Rome. Visited Algeria in 1833-35, St. Petersburg in 1836, 1838, and 1842, Algeria again in 1837, 1845, and 1853, and Egypt, Syria, Palestine, and Turkey in 1839-40. Officer L. of Honour, 1825; Commander, 1842; Grand Officer, 1862; Medal of Honour, Paris Exhibition 1855. Vernet painted successfully military, oriental, and biblical scenes, but after 1836 he devoted himself chiefly to battle-pieces and pieces illustrative of Arab life in Algeria. With wonderful facility of invention and execution, he had little imagination or depth of feeling. He is nevertheless to be classed among the great French painters on account of the change which he wrought from pseudo-classicism to that observation and close study of nature which characterize the modern schools. Works: Taking of Intrenched Camp at Glatz (1812); Dog of the Regiment; Horse with the Trumpet (1814); Battle of Tolosa (1817), Versailles Museum; Massacre of Mamelukes (1819); Defence of Paris in 1814 (1820), Louvre; Battle of Jemappes, The Working Soldier, Soldier of Waterloo, Last Cartridge, Camoens saving his Manuscripts from Shipwreck, Scenes from Molière's Plays (5), Artist's Studio, Death of Poniatowski, Defence of Saragossa, Joseph Vernet bound to the Mast (1822); Review on Champ de Mars (1824), Versailles Museum; Mazeppa (1825), Vacluse Museum; Mazeppa (1826), Avignon Museum; Last Hunt of Louis XVI. at Fontainebleau (1827); Julius II. directing the Building of the Vatican (ceiling in the Louvre); Bridge of Arcole; Escape of Lavalette, Edith searching for Body of Harold (1828); Magdalen Penitent (1828), Leipsic Museum; Pope Leo XII. carried to the Basilica of St. Peter (1829), Versailles Museum; Battles of Jemappes and Valmy, Brigands and Carabineers, Brigand Confessing, Hunting in the Pontine Marshes, Meeting of Raphael and Michelangelo, Arrest of the Princes by Order of Anne of Austria (1829); Judith and Holofernes (1830), Louvre; Campaign in France; Slave Market (1836), National Gallery, Berlin; Soldier as Nurse, Ravené Gallery, ib.; Portrait of the Emperor Nicholas, do. on Horseback, Capture of Warsaw (1842); The Carrousel in May, 1842, Capture of Wola (1844); Capture of the Smala of Abd-el-Kader (1844), Battle of Isly (1845); Capture of Rome (1851), Versailles Museum; Joseph sold by his Brethren, Return from Lion Hunt, Hunting wild Sheep in Morocco, Mass in Kabylia (1852); Equestrian Portrait of Napoleon III., Incident of Crimean War (1855); Battles of Bouvines, Fontenoy, Jena, Friedland, and Wagram (1836), Siege of Constantine (3, 1838, 1839), French Fleet forcing Entrance into the Tajo, Attack of Citadel of Antwerp (1840), Entry of French Army into Belgium in 1831 (1841), Occupation of Ancona in 1832, Taking of Bougié, do. of Fort Saint Jean d'Ulloa (1841), seven others, Versailles Museum; Expulsion of Hagar (1839), The Dead Ride fast, Nantes Museum; Portraits of Marshals Gouvion Saint Cyr (1824), Molitor (1833), Bosquet, Canrobert, Randon (1857), MacMahon, Versailles Museum; Marshal Vaillant, Dijon Museum; General Drouot, Nancy Museum. VERONESE, BONIFAZIO. See Bonifazio, Veronese.

VERONESE, PAOLO, born in Verona in 1528, died in Venice, April 19, 1588. Venetian school; real name Paolo Caliari or Cagliari, son of Gabriele Caliari, a sculptor; pupil of his uncle Antonio

Badile, according to Ridolfi, and of Giovanni Caroto, according to Vasari. After painting in Verona and in Mantua he established himself in Venice, where he executed most of his works. In 1563 he visited Rome in the suite of the Venetian ambassador, but the study of the pictures of the great masters there did not affect his style. On his return to Venice he gained great reputation by many pictures and frescos painted in the Palazzo Ducale and in churches, especially in S. Sebastiano. As Titian was then very old, Veronese shared with Tintoretto the most important commissions. He received orders from the Emperor Rudolph II., the Duke of Savoy, and the Duke of Modena, and was invited by Philip II. to decorate the Escorial; but preferring to remain in Venice, he sent Federico Zuccaro to Spain in his stead. With all his skill, splendid use of colour, and facile command of the resources of painting for decorative purposes, Veronese seems superficial when compared with Titian. He gives us the glitter, the pomp, the outward aspect of Venetian life, making it the medium for the representation of sacred as well as profane subjects; but while he thus fascinates the eye he does not, like Titian, move the feelings or reveal to the mind the hidden springs of character. He fills his canvases with men and women, in the rich costumes of the time, sitting or standing near heavily-laden banqueting tables, relieved against modern architectural backgrounds, and surrounded by musicians, pages, attendants, dogs, birds, and other objects, grouped in the foreground with masterly effect. His children are charming, his women models of sensuous beauty, his mythological subjects are especially well treated, and his portraits are remarkably life-like. Among his works are: Rape of Europa, Venice Enthroned, Venice with Justice and Peace, and others, Palazzo Ducale, Venice; Supper of St. Gregory, Convent of Monte Berico, Vicenza; Venice and Doge Sebastian Venier; Feast in House of Levi, Annunciation, Virgin and St. Dominick, Madonna with Saints, Assumption, Venice Academy; Martyrdom of St. Sebastian, Martyrdom of *SS. VERRIO, ANTONIO, born in Naples in 1634, died at Hampton Court, England, June 17, 1707. History painter; after painting for a while at Toulouse, France, where he executed an altarpiece for the Church of the Carmelites, he went to England in 1671, at the invitation of Charles II, who employed him in the decoration of Windsor Castle. He was paid nearly £7,000 for his work there, in which he was continued by James II. In the great hall of Christ's Hospital is a work by him ninety feet long, representing the governor with the officers and children returning thanks to that monarch for the hospital charter. At the time of the Revolution he refused to work for William III, but after employment at Chatsworth and at Burleigh he painted his well-known work, the great staircase at Hampton Court.—Redgrave.

VERROCCHIO, ANDREA DEL, born in Florence in 1435, died in Venice, June 25, 1488. Florentine school; real name Andrea da Michele di Francesco de' Cioni. Like Antonio Pollajuolo, he was a goldsmith, sculptor, and worker in bronze, as well as a painter. The only example of his pictorial work, the Baptism of Christ, in the Florence Academy, shows that he combined the peculiarities of Fra Filippo, of Andrea del Castagno, and of Domenico Veneziano. His modelling is conscientious, but his drapery is lifeless. Verrocchio was the master of Leonardo da Vinci and of Lorenzo di Credi.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 400; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., v. 139; ed. Mil., iii. 357; Burekhardt, 134, 351, 357; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 316.

VINCI, LEONARDO DA, born at Vinci, Val d' Arno, near Florence, in 1452, died at the Château de Clot or Cloux, near Amboise, May 2, 1519. Florentine school. Natural son of Sor Piero d' Antonio, Florentine notary; pupil of Andrea del Verrocchio, with whom he was associated as late as 1476. The bright angel which he painted in his master's picture of the Baptism of Christ, Florence Academy, the Medusa Head, at the Uffizi (if indeed it be the original, and not, as has been conjectured, the work of Lomazzo), are the only extant works of the earlier period of his life, which closed in 1483, when he wrote the famous letter to Lodovico Sforza, Duke of Milan, whose statement of universal capacity was in his case literally true. It led to his appointment as court painter, director of the newly founded Academy of Arts, general organizer of fêtes in which art played a conspicuous part, and manager of all enterprises in which a knowledge of hydraulics, engineering, and general science was necessary. For the Duke he executed the famous wall-painting of the Last Supper (1495-98), in S. M. delle Grazie, and modelled an equestrian statue, never cast, of his father, Francesco Sforza, and with him he remained until Lodovico was overthrown by the French (1499), and sent to France to die in a dungeon at the Castle of Loches. Leonardo returned to Florence, but soon left it for Venice, and the year after (1502) to visit the fortresses of the principal cities of the Romagna as military engineer to Cæsar Borgia. Between 1503 and 1505 he produced the famous cartoon of the Battle of the Standard, from which he was to have painted a fresco in the great Hall of the Palazzo Vecchio at Florence. It hung side by side with Michelangelo's cartoon of the Battle of Pisa, in the Hall, where both were studied as miracles of art by all the painters of the time until after 1518, though Vasari erroneously says it was cut to pieces in 1512. In October, 1507, Leonardo once more established himself in Milan, where he remained, with the exception of two short visits to Florence in 1511 and 1513, until 1514, when he accompanied Giuliano de' Medici to Rome to assist at the coronation of Leo X. Unless he had previously visited Rome, of which we have no proof, Leonardo must at this time have painted the admirable fresco of the Madonna with Donor, in a lunette in S. Onofrio on the Janiculum. Leonardo went in January, 1516, to France, at the invitation of Francis I., and spent the last three years of his life in the King's service. But one of the many sides of this most many-sided of great men can be considered here, and that very imperfectly—namely, his work as a painter. Of this, unfortunately, very little which can be regarded as certainly authentic remains. His great mural painting of the Last Supper, at Milan, is in such a degraded and repainted condition that it is but a shadow of a shade, of the original perfection of which we can best judge by the fine drawing for the head of Christ, in the Brera, and to some extent by the copy by Marco d' Oggione, in the Royal Academy, London, and the well-known engraving by Raphael Morghen. His cartoon survives only in the drawing of one of its groups by Rubens, in the Louvre, a Flemish copy of which was probably used by Edelinck for his engraving of the Battle of the Standard. Few of the easel pictures attributed to Leonardo have stood the test of modern criticism;

one after another has been assigned to some of his numerous disciples, until those beyond dispute authentic are the following: La Belle Ferronière (about 1497), Mona Lisa (about 1500), Madonna with St. Anne, Madonna of the Rocks, Louvre, Paris, and National Gallery, London. Other works which pass under Leonardo's name are: Bacchus, St. John Baptist (probably authentic), Louvre; Vanity and Modesty, Palazzo Barberini, Rome (painted by Luini or Salaino); Madonna, Palazzo Belgiojoso, Milan; Madonna of the Scales, Louvre (Salaino or Cesare da Sesto); Madonna and Infant St. John, Louvre (by Bernardino Luini); Portrait of Charles d'Amboise, Louvre (by Beltraffio); Resurrection, Berlin Museum; Salome with Head of John Baptist, Vienna Museum (by Cesare da Sesto); Male Portrait, perhaps of Lodovico Sforza, Dresden Museum; St. Jerome, Vatican; The Goldsmith, La Monaca, Palazzo Pitti, Florence (attributed to Lorenzo di Credi); Portrait of Isabella of Aragon, Ambrosian Library, Milan; Madonna della Caraffa, Palazzo Borghese, Rome; Portrait of Leonardo (?), Annunciation (?), Adoration of the Magi (?), Uffizi, Florence; Madonna, fresco, Villa Melzi at Vaprio; Holy Family, Hermitage, St. Peters-

VITE, TIMOTEO, or Timoteo da Urbino, born in Ferrara in 1469, died in Urbino, Oct. 10, 1523. Umbrian school ; son of Bartolommeo di Pietro Vite. Brought up a goldsmith, but painted with Francia in Bologna in 1491–95, and settled as a master at Urbino. About 1519, or perhaps a little before, he became Raphael's assistant in Rome, remaining there until Raphael's death (1520), when he probably returned to Urbino. The most important of his works is the altarpiece (1504), Duomo, Urbino. The outline and modelling are precise and careful in finish, and the drapery is good, but the effect is cold and chilling. Vite recalls Francia and Pinturicchio, though much inferior to them. A Madonna with Saints, Brera, Milan, is of this period. As he grew older he adopted the Raphaellesque style, as shown in the figure of St. Apollonia in the Santissima Trinità, Urbino. As Raphael's assistant he painted the Prophets, in the Church of the Pace, Rome, and the draperies of Raphael's Sibyls below them. The Madonna di S. Luca, Academy of St. Luke, Rome, attributed to Raphael, is now ascribed to him. To this period also belongs his Magdalen, Bologna Gallery.—C. & C., N. VIVARINI or VIVARINO, ANTONIO. See Antonio da Murano.

VIVARINI, BARTOLOMMEO, Venetian school ; last half of 15th century. Associated in 1450 with his brother Antonio da Murano, with whom he had probably studied, but soon left him and founded a separate studio. In his first works he signs himself Da Murauo, but in 1459, when he produced his St. John Capistrano, now in the Louvre, he had taken the afterwards celebrated name of Vivarini. In 1465 he painted a Madonna with Saints, now in the Naples Museum, in which Venetian and Paduan elements are commingled, but the latter predominates in his later works. After the introduction of oil-painting into Venice by Antonello da Messina in 1470, Bartolommeo was the first to adopt the new method in two altarpieces, one of 1473 in SS. Giovanni e Paolo, Venice (in parts, one in the transept and one in the sacristy), and the other, of 1474, St. Mark between Four Saints, in S. M. de' Frari, Venice. To paint these fine works he must have studied the best creations of Mantegna, whom he often resembles in accurate execution, though he is generally colder in colour. The later pictures of Bartolommeo show the hand of assistants and are of unequal value. Of these, the St. Ambrose between Four Saints (1477), in the Vienna Museum, is a good example. Between this and 1499 he executed many works, but never rose again to his best standard, and sank gradually into comparative obscurity. Among his later works is St. George and the Dragon (1485), Berlin Museum.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 39; Burekhardt, 589, 590, 623; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., vi. 86, 102, 126; ed. Mil., iii. 666; Lermolieff, 397; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 514.

VIVARINI, LUIGI or ALVISE, the elder, Venetian school, beginning of the 15th century. A Christ bearing His Cross, in the sacristy of S. Zanipolo, Venice, has his signature, with the date 1414. The picture has been so much repainted that the authenticity of the inscription has been doubted by many. Lermolieff and Crowe and Cavalcaselle doubt the existence of an elder Luigi, and the latter believe it to be the work of Luigi Vivarini who lived at the close of the 15th century, following in this Lanzi and others. Charles Blanc, however, who thinks the date authentic, and believes in the existence of an elder Luigi, is supported in his belief by Ridolfi, Zanetti, and Zanotto. There are several single figures of saints attributed to the elder Luigi in the Venice Academy.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 19, 58; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 159; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Lermolieff, 396.

VIVARINI, LUIGI, the younger, Venetian school, last of 15th century, died in 1503? He was a kinsman of Bartolommeo Vivarini, and probably studied either under him or with Antonio da Murano, his elder brother. His style for many years is marked with the Muranese stamp, but when Bartolommeo's powers began to decline, Luigi crept up gradually to an imitation of the Bellini, and in many qualities soon rivalled Giovanni Bellini. One of the best examples of his earlier works is the Madonna with Saints (1480), now in the Venice Academy. It shows correct aerial and linear perspective and the proper distribution of figures, and proves that he needed but a little more taste for colour, more delicacy of selection, and greater versatility, to equal his rivals. In 1488 he was employed with the brothers Bellini in the decoration of the Sala del Gran Consiglio, but the fire of 1577 unfortunately destroyed his works. While engaged in this he also executed important private works, the three largest and latest of which are a Madonna with Saints, Berlin Museum; Madonna with Saints and Angels (1501), same gallery; and the Apotheosis of St. Ambrose in the Frari, Venice, finished after Luigi's death, by his pupil Basaiti.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 52; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 159; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne; Lermolieff, 398; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 517.

VOLTERRA, DANIELE DA, born in Volterra in 1509, died in Rome, April 4, 1566. Florentine school. Real name Daniele Ricciarelli; pupil of Il Sodoma, afterwards of Baldassare Peruzzi. When still young he went to Rome, where, after working as assistant to Perino del Vaga, he became the pupil of Michelangelo. His chief works are in the Cappella Orsini in Trinità de' Monti, Rome, where he spent seven years in painting a series of frescos representing the history of the Cross. The principal composition, the Descent from the Cross, is ranked among the great pictures of the world. As it is superior to any other work by Volterra, many think he was aided in the composition by Michelangelo. On the death of Del Vaga, in 1547, Volterra was appointed superintendent of the works in the Vatican, but on the death of Paul III. he lost the position, and the rest of his life was devoted chiefly to sculpture. After living in Florence and other places he finally returned to Rome, and was employed by Paul IV. to drape the nude figures in Michelangelo's Last Judgment, in the Sistine Chapel, whence he was nicknamed Il Bracchettone (breeches-maker). Among his works are: Massacre of the Innocents, Uffizi, Florence; Madonna and Saints, Liechtenstein Gallery, Vienna; Descent from the Cross, Madrid Museum; Beheading of John Baptist, Turin Gallery; David and Goliath, Louvre.—Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xii. 84; ed. Mil., vii. 49; Ch. Blanc, École florentine; Burckhardt, 184, 648, 683, 756.

VOLTERRA, FRANCESCO DA, Florentine school, 14th century. Supposed disciple of Giotto, but long settled in Pisa, where in 1346 he had already executed an altarpiece for the cathedral. Another work is The Crucified, Angels and Saints, Sacrifice of Ognissanti, Florence (1350). About 1370 he painted, according to late authorities, the great frescos of the Trials of Job, in the Campo Santo, formerly ascribed to Giotto.—C. & C., Italy, i. 392; Burckhardt, 495, 497, 503.

WERFF, ADRIAAN VAN DER, born at Kralinger-Am-bacht, near Rotterdam, Jan. 21, 1659, died in Rotterdam, Nov. 12, 1722. Dutch school; history, genre, and portrait painter, pupil of Cornelis Picolett, portrait painter; then for four years of Eglon van der Neer. At seventeen years of age he painted his own portrait, and thenceforth worked independently. In the art cabinets of the wealthy amateur and collector Flinck, son of Govaert Flinck, and of the burgomaster Jan Six, in Amsterdam, 1692, he became acquainted with many masterpieces of Italian art which influenced his taste considerably. In 1696 the Elector Palatine John William visited his studio in Rotterdam and ordered his portrait and the Judgment of Solomon, made him court painter, and in 1703 he knighted him. Works: Lot and Daughters, Boy with Guinea-Pig and Girl with Kitten, Buckingham Palace, London; St. Margaret, Lord Ashburton, ib.; Magdalen, Incredulity of Thomas, Lot and Daughters, Mr. Hope,

WEST, BENJAMIN, born at Springfield, Penn., Oct. 10, 1738, died in London, March 11, 1820. Began to draw when seven years old, and took his first lessons in preparing colours from Cherokee Indians. After a little instruction from a painter named Williams, he set up, when eighteen years old, in Philadelphia as a portrait painter; thence removed to New York, and in 1760 went to Italy, where he remained, studying the antique and Michelangelo, until 1763, when he settled in London. His pictures of Agrippina bringing Home the Ashes of Germanicus, painted for the Archbishop of York, and the Departure of Regulus, bought by George III., won him royal patronage and favour, which he long enjoyed. From 1769 to 1801, during which time he received all orders from the king, who made him his historical painter (1772), West gained £34,187. The seven pictures illustrating Revealed Religion, which he painted for the Oratory at Windsor, brought him in £20,705, and his many portraits of members of the royal family were also highly remunerative. In the Death of General Wolfe (1771), now in Grosvenor House, and Penn's Treaty with the Indians, West had the courage to protest successfully against the treatment of modern subjects in classic garb, according to the fashion of the time. On the death of Sir Joshua Reynolds (1792) West succeeded him as president of the Royal Academy, of which he had been one of the founders in 1768, and, with the exception of a few months, held that office until 1815. The 400 historical and religious pictures which he painted show skill in composition and considerable inventive power, but they have no real vitality. Tame in style, poor in imagination, monotonous in colour, they ceased to interest the public when the painter disappeared from view. Among the most important of his works are: Christ healing the Sick (1802), National Gallery, which he painted for the Quaker Hospital in Philadelphia, and sold to the British Institution for £3,000, sending a copy to America; Death on the Pale Horse, Pennsylvania Academy; King Lear, Boston

Museum of Fine Arts; and Raising of Lazarus, Winchester Cathedral. Seventeen of his pictures are at Hampton Court; among them the Death of Chevalier Bayard, and the Death of Epaminondas, both painted in 1771, as companion pieces to the Death of Wolfe. Alexander the Great and his Physician is called by Waagen one of his best pictures. Many of his works were engraved.—B. West WESTALL, RICHARD, born at Hertford in 1765, died in London, Dec. 4, 1836. His book illustrations were very popular. Late in life he was drawing master to the Princess Victoria. Works: Cassandra (1797), South Kensington Museum; Esau, Sappho, Mary Stuart going to Execution, Elijah, Christ crowned with Thorns (altarpiece at All Souls' Church, London). His brother William (1781–1850) was an A.R.A., and painted in both oil and water-colours. His illustrated publications contained his best work.—Redgrave; Sandby, i. 306.

WET

WET, JAN DE (Johann Dütwett), born in Hamburg in 1617 (?). Dutch school; history painter, pupil of Rembrandt in Amsterdam, whither he went early in life. Like his master he painted biblical and mythological subjects, well composed, better drawn than Rembrandt's, and more finished in details. His pictures were often sold under Rembrandt's name. He afterwards returned to Hamburg. Works: The Seven Works of Mercy, Haarlem Museum; Elijah and the Widow, Suermondt Museum, Aix-la-Chapelle; Christ in the Temple (1635), Burning of Troy, Brunswick Gallery; Raising of Lazarus (1633), Darmstadt Gallery; Tobias and the Angel, Kunsthalle, Hamburg; others in Frankfort, Göttingen, Hanover, and Oldenburg Galleries.—Kramm, vi. 1845; Kugler (Crowe), ii. 378; Riegel, Beiträge, ii. 265; Vosmaer, Rembrandt, sa vie, etc. (1868), 62.

WETTE, FRANS DE, Dutch school, 17th century. This master is exclusively known by his biblical subjects on a small scale, in the style of Rembrandt, which are remarkable for arrangement, and fine expression in the heads, but of somewhat brown tone. WEYDEN, ROGIER VAN DER (Rogeliet de la Pasture, Roger de Bruges), born at Tournay in 1399 or 1400, died in Brussels, June 16, 1464. Flemish school; history painter, pupil in Tournay (1426) of one Robert Campin, and master of the guild there, Aug. 1, 1432; removed to Brussels before April 21, 1435, and thenceforth his name appears in its Flemish form. First mentioned as city painter, May 2, 1436. He also lived and worked at Louvain, perhaps also at Bruges; but whether he really was in Italy, especially at Ferrara and Milan, as some circumstances seem to indicate, and at Rome, during the jubilee in 1450, is not as yet ascertained. He was the founder of the school of Brabant, highly esteemed in his own country, and actively employed throughout the Burgundian realm. Although in technic and the realism of his style Rogier belongs to the school of the Van Eycks, with one of whom, Jan, he may have had personal relations, he worked with a deeper feeling and a religious intensity which betrayed him into exaggeration of sentiment and violence of action. The four great pictures which he painted in the golden chamber of the Town Hall at Brussels were destroyed in 1695. Works: Entombment (attributed), National Gallery, London; Altarpiece, Grosvenor House, ib.; Portrait of Charles the Bold, Head of Weeping Woman, Brussels Museum; eight others (attributed), ib.; Triptych with Seven Sacraments, Annunciation, Portrait of Philip the Good, Antwerp Museum; Descent from the Cross, Madrid Museum; replica (1443), St. Peter's, Louvain; altarpiece with Last Judgment (before 1450), Hospital, Beaune (Côte d'Or); Descent from the Cross, Hague Museum; St. John, Rotterdam Museum; Madonna with Saints, St. John Altar, Städel Gallery, Frankfort; Triptych with Pietà (before 1445), do. with Life of St. John, do. with Nativity, Berlin Museum; Figure of the Virgin, Fürstenberg Gallery, Donaueschingen; Christ on the Cross, Dresden Museum; Triptych with Adoration of the Magi, St. Luke painting the Virgin, Munich Gallery; Triptych with Crucifixion, The Virgin Nursing Christ, St. Catherine, Vienna Museum; Pietà (attributed), Uffizi, Florence.—Ch. himself to realize a farthing, supporting himself and his old mother exclusively by painting portraits. In his studio he tried to bring to perfection a process of painting combining the merits of fresco and of oil, and really invented a new method, excluding reflection, which he called "peinture mate"—unpolished painting. He was an artist of undeniable, although undisciplined, genius, possessed of great power and individuality of execution, and of deep philosophic thought, combined with a fancy, in a marked degree, for the horrible, the grotesque, and the fantastic. Of his writings on art the "Eulogy on Rubens" (1840) and the "Mémorial on the Flemish School of Painting" were crowned by the Brussels Academy. lage Recruit (1805). In 1805 he went to London and entered the Royal Academy as a student with a certain reputation which was acknowledged by leading artists. In 1806 he produced the Village Politicians, which at once brought him fame. This was followed by the Blind Fiddler (1807, National Gallery, London), Alfred in the Neatherd's Cottage (1807), Card Players (1807), and Rent Day (1808). In 1809 he was elected an A.R.A., and in 1811, R.A. In the latter year he painted the Village Festival (National Gallery, London). These works are full of character, well composed, and carefully drawn, but they are thinner in colour and less highly finished than the Blind Man's Buff (1812, Buckingham Palace), Distraint for Rent (1814), Duncan Gray (1814), Rabbit on the Wall (1815), Penny Wedding (1818), Reading the Will (1820, New Pinakothek, Munich), Chelsea Pensioners (1821), Parish Beadle (1822, National Gallery, London), and the Highlander's Home (1825), all of which belong to his middle and best period, in which the influence of the Dutch and Flemish masters is conspicuous. In 1814 Wilkie visited Paris, in 1816 Holland, and in 1817 Scotland, where he was entertained at Abbotsford, and painted his group of Sir Walter Scott and his Family. In 1832 he exhibited John Knox preaching before the Lords of the Congregation (National Gallery, London), one of his most esteemed pictures in his second manner; and in 1835 a series of Irish subjects, a portrait of Queen Adelaide, for the Bodleian Library at Oxford, and that of William IV., by whom he was knighted in 1836, for Waterloo Chapel at Windsor. In 1825 Sir David again went to Paris, and visited also Italy, Germany, and Spain, returning to London in 1828.

In 1840 he went to the East for his health, but grew worse in the following year, and dying on shipboard in Gibraltar Bay he was buried at sea. In his third manner, the result of his Italian and Spanish studies, Wilkie aimed at Venetian effects of colour, and produced pictures less esteemed than those of an earlier time in which subject, conception, and technical treatment are in harmony. Other works: The Bagpiper (1813), News mongers (1820), Wooded Landscape (1822), The First Ear-Ring (1834), National Gallery, London; John Knox dispensing the Sacrament at Calder House, Pitlessie Fair, Portrait of his Sister, National Gallery, Edinburgh; Cotter's Saturday Night (Moore sale, 1872, 590 guineas); Only Daughter (do., 630 guineas); Errand Boy (Knowles sale, 1864, 1,050 guineas); Cut Finger; Sunday Morning; Jews-Harp; Pedlar; Village School; Maid of Saragossa; Guerilla Council of War; Monks in Cathedral of Toledo; Columbus at La Rábida; and many portraits. with some success, he went, in 1749, to Italy, where, by advice of Zuccarelli, he devoted himself to landscape painting. Though unfavoured by fortune, he continued the struggle, and in 1760 his ability attained some slight recognition when his picture of Niobe was exhibited at the Society of Artists, of which he was a member; yet he never became popular, and died in comparative indigence, a disappointed man. three years in wandering about Germany and the Netherlands, and then settled at Nuremberg, where he first appears as a citizen in 1474. He opened a large studio, or rather workshop, in which he and his numerous apprentices painted religious pictures to order, and made designs for such wood-cuts as those which fill the pages of the famous "Chronicle of Nuremberg." Rather a skilful mechanic than an artist, Wolgemuth's fame rests more upon the fact that he had Albrecht Dürer as his pupil than upon his artistic work. WOUNDED, SALUTING THE (Salut aux blessés), Édouard Detaille, Samuel Hawk Collection, New York ; canvas. A convoy of German prisoners, on foot, passing a French general and his escort, mounted, on the highway ; the latter salute the captives with military politeness, the officers by raising their caps, the cuirassiers by the ordinary gesture. Painted in 1875 by commission from Mr. Samuel Hawk from a sketch submitted by the artist. This sketch, also in Hawk Collection, represents French prisoners escorted by helmeted Germans, but the artist finally changed the respective uniforms out of regard to the feelings of his friends, who objected to sending to America a painting of French prisoners. At Detaille's request, the picture was returned to France for exhibition in the Salon of 1877 ; but the objection was again raised that it would be ridiculous to exhibit in public a scene representing German prisoners, so the artist redressed the captives

Flemish school; history and landscape painter, pupil of Pieter van Avont and of Rubens; master of Antwerp guild in 1634; went soon after to Germany, where we find him in 1637 as court painter to Ferdinand II, with whose ambassador he went to England and there became painter to the Prince of Wales, afterwards Charles II.; had returned to Antwerp in 1641, and was dean of the guild in 1649. Works: Dance of Amorettes, Hampton Court Gallery; Prometheus Bound, Nude Figure with Garland, Lille Museum; Venus and Adonis, Copenhagen Gallery; Sacrifice to Priapus, Royal Palace, Berlin; Two Landscapes, Cassel Gallery; Conflagration in Dutch City, Städel Gallery, Frankfurt; Rape of Europa, Gotha Museum; Diana Hunting (1630), Vienna Museum. WOUWERMAN (Wouwerman), JAN, born in Haarlem, baptized Oct. 30, 1629, died there, buried Dec. 1, 1666. Dutch school; landscape painter, brother of Philips Wouwerman, entered Haarlem guild in 1655. He painted hilly landscapes, views of canals, and wide plains, with strong colouring and light effects, and enlivened them by figures and animals. Very few of his pictures exist, and several are probably attributed to Jan Wynants, whose manner his own closely resembles. Works: Landscape with Horsemen, Arenberg Gallery, Brussels; View in Haarlem, Haarlem Museum; Hilly Landscape, Rotterdam Museum; Rocky Ravine with Figures, Liechtenstein Gallery, Vienna; The Halt, New York Museum.—Burger, Musées, ii. 303; Dohme, iii.; Van der Willigen, 341.

WOUWERMAN, PHILIPS, born in Haarlem, baptized May 24, 1619, died there, May 19, 1668. Dutch school; landscape, genre, and animal painter, first instructed by his father Pauwels Joosten, then pupil of Jan Wynants, whose influence is traceable in his backgrounds. He introduced groups of horses, hunts, soldiers, in the manner of Pieter van Laer, but with far more variety. His figures and animals are well drawn and animated, and the general tone is tender and harmonious. He painted nearly eight hundred pictures, including many repetitions of the same motive. In his first style the brown tone, heavy race of horses, and angular drawing of figures remind one of Pieter van Laer. His second style is distinguished by the pure golden tone and slender build of horses, and the third by the prevalence of a dull silvery tone. Works: Belle Laitière, Interior of Stable, Fishwomen on Seashore, Gathering Faggots, Landscape, Stag Hunt, Skirmish, Two Vedettes on Watch, National Gallery, London; Two Horsemen and Lady, Coup de Pistolet, Farmer attacked by Robbers, Hawking Party, six others, Buckingham Palace, ib.; three in Bridgewater Gallery, ib.; Ferme au Colombier, four others, Lord Ashburton, ib.; Hawking Party, Huntsmen halting before Inn, Mr. Hope, ib.; Horse-Fair, Grosvenor Gallery, ib.; Horseman with Hounds, Inn with Tents, Mr. Baring, ib.; Racing for the Herring, four others, Mr. Holford, ib.; Riding Party, Hawking Party, Alfred de Rothschild, ib.; Woman and Child

WOUWERMAN, PIETER, born in Haarlem, baptized Sept. 13, 1623, died in Amsterdam, buried May 9, 1682 (?). Dutch school; landscape, genre, and animal painter, pupil of his father Pauwels Joosten and of his brother Philips, whom he probably assisted in his pictures, the great number of which could otherwise hardly be explained. Lived in Amsterdam about 1662, and probably also in Paris about 1664. Though he never attained the silvery tints and brilliant colouring of his brother, whose pictures he often copied, many of his works pass under the latter's name. Since 1879 he has lived at Gremsmühlen in Holstein.

WRIGHT

WRIGHT, GEORGE FREDERICK, born in Washington, Conn., Dec. 19, 1828, died in Hartford, Jan. 29, 1881. Portrait painter; after studying in a studio and in the life school of the National Academy in New York, he settled in Hartford and painted portraits for five years; then studied two years in Europe, chiefly in Munich under Albert Gräfe, but partly in Rome. He painted at various times at Springfield, Ill., and in other Western and Southern cities, but worked principally in Hartford, Conn. Among his portraits are many of the governors and other prominent men of Illinois and of Connecticut, and he was one of the first, if not the first, to paint Abraham Lincoln. He was an excellent colourist.

WRIGHT, JOSEPH (Wright of Derby), born at Derby, England, Sept. 3, 1734, died there, Aug. 29, 1797. Went in 1751 to London, and studied under Thomas Hudson, the master of Reynolds; became at first a portrait painter, but afterwards devoted himself chiefly to landscape and genre subjects. Was in Italy in 1773-75, and made many sketches of flame effects, especially in an eruption of Vesuvius, and with lights in the caves at Capri. In 1775 he became a student in the Royal Academy; in 1781 he was elected an A.R.A., and in 1784 R.A., but declined, though he continued to send pictures to the exhibitions. In landscape he was almost equal to Richard Wilson, and in portraiture he was a near rival of Gainsborough. colour, and careful execution, together with a serious, often grand conception. Works: Altar Wings (1488), Altarpiece (1497), Archæological Union, Stuttgart; Altarpiece (1490-95), Stuttgart Museum; Four

ZELOTTI, GIAMBATTISTA, born in

Verona about 1532, died about 1592. Venetian school; educated in the school of Antonio Badile, where he was a fellow-pupil and friend of Paolo Veronese. Called by Vasari, Battista Farinato, whence some have supposed him of kin to Paolo Farinato. Vasari also numbers him among the pupils of Titian. He was a man of genius, full of ideas and of imagination, and a worthy rival of Paolo Veronese, with whom he worked much in collaboration, especially in fresco painting, in which he excelled; but he was without ambition or confidence in himself, and died obscure and miserable. Among his frescos, those in the Palazzo Ducale, which have been attributed to Paolo Veronese, and those in the Library of St. Mark are the best. Of his pictures in oil, The Conversion of St. Paul, and the Miraculous Draught of Fishes, Vicenza, Duomo, are much admired.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne: Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 595; Burekhardt, 749, 750, 754.

A few pictures are ascribed to him alone, as Madonna in the Ambrosiana, Virgin with Saints and Kneeling Duke and Duchess Sforza, in the Brera (1494-96), and Annunciation in the Casa Borromeo, Milan; but Lermolieff says there is no authenticated picture by him in existence. After 1501 he gave most of his time to architecture. In 1515 he became architect of Santa Maria sopra San Celso, and in 1519 of the Duomo, Milan. He wrote a treatise on perspective in 1524.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 33; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., vii. 127; xi. 271; Burekhardt, 608; Ch. Blanc, École milanaise; Lübke, *Gesch. ital. ZEUXIPPUS. See Zeuxis.

ZEUXIS, one of the most famous of Greek painters, native of Heraclea (probably the Pontic), latter part of 5th century B.C. Ionic school. Called Zeuxippus by Socrates in the Protagoras of Plato (Brunn, ii. p. 77). It is uncertain whether his master was Demophilus of Himera or Neseas of Thasos, but he probably owed more to Apollodorus, who was at the height of his reputation when Zeuxis went to Athens, than to either of them. Pliny says (xxxv. 36 [61]) that Zeuxis entered the doors of art which had been thrown open by Apollodorus, and Apollodorus himself complained in verse that Zeuxis had robbed him of his art. His characteristics were close imitation of nature and sensuous charm. In his works the highest standard of human beauty was reached, and the closest representation of those objects in nature which are incapable of an ideal representation. But, according to Aristotle (Poët., vi. 5), they were wanting in character, or that which elevates the moral sentiments. His Helen, in which were combined the physical charms of the five most beautiful virgins of Crotona, was celebrated as the embodiment of the perfection of female loveliness. It was consecrated in the Temple of Juno in that city, but it was probably carried to Rome, as Pliny mentions a Helena by Zeuxis in the Portico of Philip. Other pictures mentioned by Pliny (l. c.) are: The Infant Hercules Strangling the Serpent in presence of Amphitryon and Alcmene, probably the same as the Alcmene which the artist gave to the people of Agrigentum, after he had arrived at the conclusion that there was no price large enough to set on his works; A Jupiter Enthroned surrounded by the other Deities; A Marsyas Bound, preserved in the Temple of Concord, Rome, supposed to have been similar in design to a picture found at Herculaneum; a Pan, which he gave to King Archelaus of Macedonia, whose palace at Pella he decorated; and a Penelope. Lucian describes (Zeuxis, 3) also his picture of the Centaur Family or Hippocentaur, a female centaur suckling her young in the foreground, with the male in the background holding up a lion's whelp to frighten the little ones. Lucian saw only a copy of this picture, the original having been lost in a vessel off Cape Malea on its way to Rome, whither Sulla had sent it from Athens. An engraved gem in the Florentine Museum is supposed to have been copied from it. A picture of Eros crowned with Roses is mentioned by the scholiast to Aristophanes, a Menelaus by Tzetzes, and a Boreas or Triton by Lucian (Timon, 54), as among the works of Zeuxis. That Zeuxis elaborated his paintings with great care may be inferred from his reply to Agatharcus, who boasted of the ease and speed with which he worked:

"I confess I take a long time to paint ; but I paint works to last a long time" (Plut. Per., 13, De Amic. Mult., 5). Pliny relates (l. c.) that Zeuxis, having entered into a pictorial contest with Parrhasius, painted some grapes so naturally that the birds were attracted to them. Elated with his success, he haughtily demanded that the curtain should be drawn aside from his opponent's picture in order that he might see it, but was obliged to admit his defeat when he found that the curtain itself was Parrhasius's picture. Zeuxis afterwards painted a boy carrying grapes, when the birds pecked at them as before. This vexed him greatly, and he exclaimed: "I have painted the grapes better than the child, or the birds would have been afraid of him" (Pliny, l. c.). Festus relates (s. v. Pictor) that Zeuxis met his death by choking with laughter at a picture of an old woman he had just painted, but the time of his decease is unknown.
