CONCORDANCE TO QUOTATIONS

INDEXES

I certainly think that the best book in the world would owe the most to a good index, and the worst book, if it had but a single good thought in it, might be kept alive by it
HORACE BINNEY—To S Austin Allibone

So essential did I consider an index to be to every book, that I proposed to bring a bill into Parliament to deprive an author who publishes a book without an index of the privilege of copyright, and, moreover, to subject him for his offense to a pecuniary penalty
LORD CAMPBELL—Lives of the Chief Justices of England Preface to Vol III

An index is a necessary implement * * * Without this, a large author is but a labyrinth without a clue to direct the readers within FULLER—Worthies of England

The index tells us the contents of stories and directs to the particular chapters
MASSINGER and FIELD—Fatal Dowry Act IV Sc 1

How index-learning turns no student pale,
Yet holds the eel of science by the tail
POPE—Dunciad Bk I L 279

That roars so loud and thunders in the index
Hamlet Act III Sc 4 L 53

And in such indexes, although small pricks
To their subsequent volumes, there is seen
The baby figure of the giant mass
Of things to come at large Troilus and Cressida Act I Sc 3 L 343.

CONCORDANCE TO QUOTATIONS

NOTE—The indexed word is usually found in the phrase, indicated by its initial letter. When not found there it is to be understood that the phrase begins with the indexed word.

In general old spelling is not followed, but all words will be found under the correct form. This is the case with dialect, save when the spelling is so well known that the searcher would otherwise be misled. As the space allowed is often not adequate for a full phrase, unimportant words are omitted in order to convey the idea, although no word is changed.

The small black-faced figures that follow the page numbers indicate the numerical order of the quotation on the page.

handy h bigger than h handie toward my h
hard with labour
has brushed em from me
he know whose gentile h her cheek upon her h
hate a man h
her hungs on every h
His h of special grace
his h unstan'd
his h upon many a heart
his h was known in Heaven hold in your right h
hold mortality's strong h
hold scepter with in h holds h with any princess holds in her h the power hop a little from her h
how skillful grows the h
if that h now calmed
in death's h
in der flachen H
in evening withhold not h in fancy in pain of your h in h down to the dead
in h with waddering
in h as h a javelin
in his own h bears
in one h a stone
in thy right h carry peace invention and his h
iron h in a velvet glove irrevoable h
I see a h you cannot see
I see thy h, O God
keep lifted in awe
keeps his heart and h
keep the h warm inside
kiss my h and say
laid his h upon, "The Ocean's" laid my h upon thy mane lays his h on honour
left h robes and woman
lend a h 324 20, 635 10
less than woman's h
let not thy left h know let your h run away
look my phantom h
loics the h raised
lightnings which his h

 Yonic-alex, poor Y 4, 9, 405 9
 of thy tribe 520 2
 York-by this sun of Y 765 1
 Regent and the Duke of Y 680 10
 Yorkshire-living in Y was 437 13
 You-all just come to be y 55 9 and only y shall be 726 20 even as y and I 900 11
 think of y in Flanders 859 13 when I chanced on y 491 22
 Young-ancient earth was y 558 13
